Piracy Angers Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union charged Wednesday night that a South Korean warship fired on an unarmed Russian ship off North Korea, seriously damaging her and inflicting casualties among the crew.

(South Korea denied the attack.)

Calling the attack an act of piracy on the high seas, Tass news agency, in an authorized statement, threatened the destruction of any ships engaging in similar attacks in the future.

Tass said the Soviet hydrographic vessel Ungo was fired upon Dec. 28 at a point about 30 miles off North Korea and 36 miles north of the South Korean boundary.

The attacker, the agency said, was a South Korean warship of the "big hunter type, No. 205."

Presumably this was a former U.S. navy submarine chaser of 251 tons displacement carrying one 40-mm. and two 20-mm. guns, turned over to the South Koreans, Janes, authoritative manual on navies, lists No. 205 in the Korean navy as such a ship.

Tass said the warship turned after firing its shots and sailed toward South Korean waters, accompanied by two similar warships which remained at a distance.

The Soviet ship was operating in waters not far from the course used in repatriating Koreans from Japan to North Korea. Two Soviet ships are being used to ferry the repatriates, South Korea has threatened to use force if necessary to prevent the migration.

Police Raid Vancouver

'Blind Pigs'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police raided five speakeasies early Wednesday following Police Chief George Archer's disclosure to city council the night before that police are aware of 84 illegal drinking establishments, known as "blind pigs."

Police said one house with a shabby exterior had luxurious interior, including a bar room featuring a 10-foot bar covered with cowhide and one elaborate table concealing 14 bottles of liquor.

'You Just Killed My Eyes'

FREDERICKTOWN, Mo. (AP) — A Fredericktown man was held in jail yesterday for the shotgun slaying of a blind man's guide dog.

The dog's owner told the man, "You just killed my eyes."

The dog was Janie, German shepherd owned by John J. Hess, Jr., 32, of St. Louis.

Everett Stacy, 42, said he shot because he thought Janie was going to spring at him.

Tossing his hat into ring for 1960 Democratic presidential nomination is Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who will be the candidate of "the plain people."

Sen. Humphrey said that if nominated he could defeat Republican Richard M. Nixon.

'Return Bonus Cards Court Orders Police

VANCOUVER (CP)—Magistrate James Bartman Wednesday ordered the Crown to return 20,000 bonus cards seized from grocery stores of Shop Easy Stores here unless the prosecutor can prove he needs them.

The cards were seized by detectives in a raid on Shop Easy stores in Vancouver about two weeks ago in an investigation to see if they contravene the Criminal Code of Canada. The cards give customers a chance at cash prizes.

Britain, France Happy

Summit Now Definite

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain is "very pleased" Russia has accepted May 16 for the start of an East-West summit conference, a foreign office spokesman said Wednesday night.

Sir Patrick Reilly, British ambassador in Moscow, received the brief acceptance note from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and forwarded it immediately to London.

FIRST OF SERIES

British officials said the May meeting in France is intended by the West to be the first of a series. In letters to Russia eight days ago, the three Western powers suggested summit talks could rotate in turn among the four capitals.

In Paris, French government officials welcomed the news of Russia's acceptance of the Western-proposed date. They said from the start France believed time must be allowed for thorough preparation of the summit talks.

REPLY IMMEDIATE

Premier Nikita Khrushchev's acceptance came only a day after the May 16 date was proposed in personal letters from President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Macmillan and President de Gaulle.

It will be the first East-West summit conference since the four powers met in Geneva in July, 1955. Of the four men, Eisenhower is the only one who attended as head of government.

Macmillan and Khrushchev attended in other capacities with their prime ministers, Sir Anthony Eden and Nikolai Bulganin. It will be de Gaulle's first summit conference.

WORLD EXPERTS TO RULE ON PEACE HYDRO PLANS

Scientists Demand All-Out Fight

'Control Births To Save World'

SIR JULIAN HUXLEY

CHICAGO (UPI)—Two noted scientists called yesterday for all-out use of every practical method of birth control to save the world from political and social catastrophe.

The demand was contained in a statement issued by Dr. Philip M. Hauser, University of Chicago sociologist, British biologist Sir Julian Huxley forwarded "general" agreement with the statement from England and added to it.

INCONSISTENT

Hauser said United States refusal to back birth control would be inconsistent with this nation's participation in the United Nations health program and American medical efforts towards "death control."

Hauser and Huxley also attacked Pope John's Dec. 24 pronouncement against birth control and President Eisenhower's opposition to offering birth control information to other nations.

INSUFFICIENT

While birth control methods acceptable to the Catholic church "can and do" control population to a limited extent, Hauser said, they will not suffice in the face of the world's current population "explosion."

A basic problem for immediate generations is not space and feeding, Hauser said, so much as raising living standards in under-developed countries in order to meet the threat of Communism.

ERRONEOUS

"To the extent that the population facts are ignored, the Roman Catholic church is assuming a position in respect to demography (population statistics study) now like the admittedly erroneous positions it originally took (toward) Copernican cosmology and Darwinian evolution," Hauser said.

Hauser said Pope John had attached labels of "pernicious and death dealing" to birth control methods "completely incompatible with moral values of other Christian as well as non-Christian value systems."

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Canada is clearly opposed to any further nuclear tests, External Affairs Minister Howard Green said here Wednesday.

Mr. Green made the statement during a brief stopover at Windsor airport on his way to Vancouver and his home riding of Vancouver-Quadra.

AGAINST TESTS

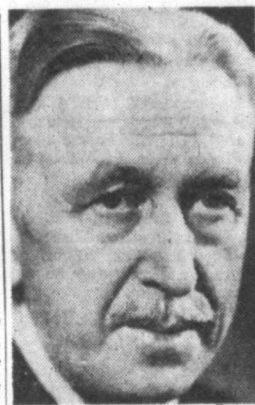

Asked for his opinion regarding President Eisenhower's announcement Tuesday that the U.S. will not extend its moratorium on nuclear tests, Mr. Green replied, "We are against nuclear tests of any kind, and our position has been made clear on this point."

SERIOUS MISTAKES

In Regina CCF House leader Hazen Argue said:

"The CCF party believes any decision by the United States to resume nuclear tests is a serious mistake."

"Far from strengthening the Western position at the summit conference it has weakened it."

'Admit 2,500'—Coldwell

Refugee Flow 'Mere Token'

OTTAWA (CP) — The CCF party Wednesday called on the federal government to admit 2,500 tubercular European refugees and their families in the next six months.

National leader M. J. Coldwell said that the current admission of 100 patients and their families from Europe is "no more than a token, a gesture."

He said the number of beds available in Canadian sanatoria now is around 2,700.

"For us to leave these beds empty any longer while thousands of European refugees continue their dismal wait in camps set up 15 years ago is a sin against humanity," Mr. Coldwell said in a statement in connection with the current World Refugee Year.

For the proposed 2,500, he said it would be the federal government's responsibility to make all the necessary arrangements with the provinces, including the payment of all costs.

"The government," he added, "must also give its utmost moral and financial support to those agencies of the United Nations trying to solve the still more difficult problem of the refugees of, for example, the Middle East and Hong Kong."

Vanier:

'Open Your Arms'

OTTAWA (CP) — Maj.-Gen. George Vanier, in his first New Year's message as governor-general, yesterday made a special plea to Canadians to welcome with open arms persons who come from foreign lands to seek a new life in Canada.

Through a warm welcome for newcomers, Canadians would strengthen the bonds of unity under the crown and continue the apostleship of the Queen who had endeared herself to many new Canadians during her visit last summer.

Men With No Axes To Grind

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The world's best technical experts will be brought in to study the feasibility report on the engineering and economics of hydro development in the Peace River, B.C. water controller Arthur F. Paget said last night.

STAKING REPUTATIONS

"They will be people who have no axe to grind in British Columbia and their professional reputations will be staked on their decisions," Mr. Paget said.

FOUR COPIES

Peace River Power Development Company president W. C. Mainwaring delivered to Mr. Paget yesterday four copies of the nine-volume report prepared by his company after $5,000,000 worth of studies in the Rocky Mountain Trench area.

REPORT SECRET

Mr. Mainwaring said the report is secret and all other copies have been locked away in a vault until the water controller has completed his study and made his recommendations.

The report details plans for a $611,000,000 development to produce 4,000,000 horsepower on the Peace River.

Mr. Paget says it deals only with hydro development and has nothing to do with a proposed railway or a uranium enrichment plant. "Those do not come under my department," he said.

MARCH DEADLINE

Mr. Paget has until March 31 to make a report on the development plan.

"I am going into deep thought for about three months," he said. He added his own department experts and others who will be brought in will study the plan. One world-renowned consultant, D. J. Bliffuss, is already working on the Peace studies with the water rights branch.

SOUND REPORT

"We are going to produce a basically very sound report," Mr. Paget said.

"There will be no public hearings during these studies," Mr. Paget declared.

Mr. Paget said he will make a report to the government. "That report might be construed as approval or disapproval," he said.

PUC NEXT

After Mr. Paget makes his report . . . and if it is favorable to the Peace development . . . the Peace River Power Development Company will have to apply to the Public Utilities Commission for a certificate of convenience and necessity.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

That is when public hearings on the plan will be held.

"A decision on a water rights licence must wait until the PUC gives its approval to the scheme," Mr. Paget said, "and it would be contingent upon the company receiving PUC approval."

City Police Court Collects $151,000 in Fines in '59

Dog's Heart Transplanted

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Norman Shumway and Dr. Richard Lower have successfully transplanted a living heart from one dog to another.

The mongrel male dog was still alive a week after the operation.

Business continued to expand in Victoria's police court during 1959, as more than 8,000 "customers" paid in more than $151,000—more than $5,000 above the total for 1958.

The total includes fines paid into court by all types of offenders during the year, those prepaid in the traffic office as well as those paid in court.

Actually, just over 8,000 individuals paid their fines in the court as a result of summons.

December receipts including Dec. 30 were $13,378—and another $300 to $400 would probably be added for the last day of the year.

Total number of courtroom contributors in 1958 was 7,601, and the receipts for that year were $145,816.

All money from fines goes into the city's general revenue. It is not earmarked for the police court or the department.

DAY IN, DAY OUT

Those who paid their fines in the traffic office (and the vast majority were parking violations) averaged about 190 individuals a day, six days a week, all year.

Only one month in 1959 showed fines totalling less than $10,000. "Returns" for August were only $9,821.

For other months, receipts were: January, $13,185; February, $12,287; March, $12,314; April, $13,394; May, $13,163; June, $13,972; July, $11,080; September, $13,467; October, $11,953; November, $13,470.

Just Eight Deaths Away From All-Time Record

British Columbia last night stood only eight deaths away from equalling the all-time traffic fatality record of 316, set in 1956.

With 308 traffic deaths recorded up until yesterday, motor vehicles branch officials appealed to motorists to drive carefully and sensibly over the New Year's holiday.

Besides the fatalities there have been more than 7,000 persons injured this year, some of them maimed for life.

Diesel Cab Empty on 70-Mile Trip

Runaway Tries Rival Line

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Little old 240, an ugly duckling as far as locomotives go, sallied forth to see the world yesterday.

The squat little diesel, assigned to the glamorous task of switching cars in the yard, clipped off nearly 70 miles through the Virginia countryside, without anyone in its cab before pursuing trainmen could corral it.

Nobody got hurt. A companion crewless switch engine bound on the same trip pooped out.

The railroad hinted that someone deliberately sent them on their way.

Startled trainmen noticed that the two engines were gone. A train agent solemnly called Richmond police to report them missing.

About the same time, the rival Chesapeake and Ohio

Railway's warning system flashed that a train was on C & O tracks. No trains were scheduled at the hour and the C & O put out an order for other trains to "stay off the track."

Meanwhile, the first engine was found sitting quietly on a railroad trestle over the James River.

C & O road foreman J. A. Nuttycombe and trainmaster J. E. Bickers brought their engine alongside on parallel tracks, and used a long pole-like hook to smash the window and close 240's throttle and try to lock the brake.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

CANADA'S railways are fighting to stay alive. So Bill Stephenson reminds us in the Star Weekly.

For short journeys, many Canadians would rather go by car, and for long journeys, by plane. Trucks are stealing the railways' freight.

The railways must fight with one hand tied. They are hampered by rate and schedule rules that don't affect trucks and cars.

Canada seems to be turning her back on the iron road that made her a nation.

The number of railway employees in Canada fell by more than 9 per cent in 1958. Some railway stations were torn down. Others were marked for demolition. Railway towns dwindled in importance.

"A boy of today who dreams of becoming a railway engineer will be lucky when he grows up if he can even see an engineer, let alone be one."

But the railways have not surrendered. They are striking back with devices like automatic freight yards, "piggyback" freight service (trucks and trailers riding on railway flat cars, economy passenger fares, package deals and pay-later plans.

Four can travel much cheaper than one on the CNR during off-season. "Package" fares cover ticket, meals, berths and tips.

Driving a car on a crowded highway can be hard work. Why do so many salesmen and holiday-makers choose to drive, rather than let the railway carry them?

The rail traveler can relax, enjoy the scenery, or do some of his paperwork en route. The driver of a car can't do any of these things.

I think the railways could lure back many of their customers from the roads, by offering cheap U-drive service at both ends of the rail journey.

It is already possible for rail passengers to have a U-drive car waiting for them at the station. But the railways have not organized this service on a large scale, or advertised it with much enthusiasm.

Here is a plan they might follow: secure a contract with existing U-drive firms, or build the nucleus of a U-drive fleet of their own. Approach business firms, offer special package deals to traveling executives and salesmen, covering rail fares and meals and the use of a car at stopping points.

There would be difficulties. But I believe it could be done.

The railway smoking car has been a dull place since the salesmen began to travel by road.

On a coast-to-coast rail trip 10 years ago, I heard about 200 new jokes, none of which was fit to print here. I promptly forgot them all, because I seem to have an automatic censor built into my head, which suits off memory.

I had made up my mind to take more careful note on the next trip, or bring a tape recorder.

This year I traveled all the way to Montreal on the CNR without hearing a single joke. The salesmen who might have told the yarns were rolling along the highway in automobiles, wasting their jokes on hitch-hikers.

I hope the railways bring in a U-drive plan to lure the salesmen back, so that I can replenish my stock of jokes on my next rail trip.

Surplus Red Carpet

Royal Visit Leftover

EDMONTON (CP)—The City of Edmonton is trying to clean up the odds and ends left over from last summer's royal visit.

Officials are puzzled as to what to do with 120 feet of red carpet, suitable for use on diving boards, and not sold at an auction a few weeks ago.

And, yesterday, they began giving away several hundred souvenir programs of the visit which had been selling for 25 cents.

Congress Groups Must Have Say In Columbia Pact

WASHINGTON (CP)—The state department said Wednesday it will have to consult with several Congressional committees before it can negotiate a Columbia River construction treaty with Canada.

Ivan White, deputy assistant secretary for European affairs, said he had no idea how long this consultation process may take. He indicated the United States and Canadian governments are anxious to proceed quickly.

He spoke to reporters following publication of proposed principles recommended by the international joint commission for joint exploitation of the Columbia. The principles broadly include a 50-50 split by the two countries of new power developed on the U.S. side of the river as a result of regulation of flow through Canadian water storage.

The principles, worked out as possible guidelines in negotiating a joint construction agreement, also include U.S. payment to Canada for Canada's share of the cost of the project.

Ottawa Knee-Deep In Snow Trouble

OTTAWA (CP) — The city of Ottawa was knee-deep in winter trouble as snow continued to fall late Wednesday almost 48 hours after it started.

Municipal officials were deluged with complaints as snow-clearance failed to keep up with snowfall.

A windswept storm Monday night left the civic works department far behind, building high snowdrifts with seven inches of fall.

Late Wednesday the snowfall was edging past the 12-inch mark. Traffic has been pure turmoil. Stranded cars litter streets.

In southern Ontario weary linemen Wednesday were in the home stretch of their battle to restore power to nearly 12,000 homes cut off by a severe ice storm that snowed-clearance failed to keep up with snowfall.

A windswept storm Monday night left the civic works department far behind, building high snowdrifts with seven inches of fall.

Late Wednesday the snowfall was edging past the 12-inch mark. Traffic has been pure turmoil. Stranded cars litter streets.

In southern Ontario weary linemen Wednesday were in the home stretch of their battle to restore power to nearly 12,000 homes cut off by a severe ice storm that snowed-clearance failed to keep up with snowfall.

Underground A-Tests Denied in Washington

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Communist party newspaper Pravda charged yesterday that the United States had violated the 14-month moratorium on nuclear tests by setting off "underground atomic explosions." The charge may have been based on a misunderstanding.

(In Washington the U.S. state department denied the Russian charge. A spokesman said no U.S. underground tests had been conducted since the well-publicized "hardtrack series" in Nevada in October, 1958.

(State department spokesman Joseph W. Reap noted that the Pravda statement was so vague it was not clear "whether they are charging us with holding new tests or whether they were referring to the hardtrack tests.")

Pravda made the accusation in commenting on President Eisenhower's announcement that the United States would not extend its formal nuclear test moratorium but would give advance notice before resuming tests.

The official Communist party paper said the U.S. move hardly could be regarded "as a sign of love of peace." It charged anew that the Geneva nuclear conference was bogged down "through the fault of the Western powers."

Steel Sides 'Lobbying'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Federal mediation chief Joseph F. Finnegan yesterday temporarily suspended government efforts to settle the steel dispute.

He said neither side was willing to compromise because both were busy lobbying for votes in next month's poll of the steelworkers on management's last offer.

Savage Storm Rips Fiji Islands

SUVA, Fiji (UPI)—A South Pacific hurricane that smashed through parts of the Fiji and New Hebrides Island chains and buffeted ships at sea in the past two days headed for the Tonga Islands with new fury last night.

One man was killed and seven persons injured in Yako village as 85-mile-an-hour winds swept through the Fiji capital of the New Hebrides.

The Matson liner Monterey reached port here yesterday after taking a terrific pounding from the storm at sea. Chairs, crockery and glassware were smashed, but there were no reports of casualties on board.

Meanwhile, hurricane warnings were issued in the Tongas as the storm bore down on them at a rate of about 35 miles an hour.

The storm first struck the island of Efate in the New Hebrides Monday night, and was reported to have flattened more than 60 per cent of Port Vila and destroyed about 90 per cent of the island's crops.

Nun Joins Search For Slayer

BIRMINGHAM, Eng. (AP)—A nun joined the hunt Wednesday night for the killer who cut off the head of stenographer Stephanie Baird.

Escorted by detectives, the nun toured the streets of this frightened city and looked in on cafes, taverns and saloons.

But nowhere did she spot the face of a man she had seen skulking around Birmingham's Roman Catholic cathedral—the man she thought might be the murderer.

He fitted the description of the killer who beheaded the 29-year-old Stephanie in aYWCA hostel seven days ago. Several times in the last week the man had been seen loitering in the Cathedral of St. Chad.

"When I asked him to leave, he became offensive," the nun said.

Jury Finds Homicide, Urges Better Lighting

VANCOUVER (CP)—A coroner's jury Wednesday recommended proper street lighting at all bus stops and along all bus routes, and access roads into inaccessible areas.

The jury returned a verdict of homicide in the death of Lila Anderson, 38, whose beaten, violated body was found Boxing Day in a muddy excavation in the suburban South Vancouver area.

Teetotal Brewer Talks Moderation

TORONTO (CP)—The general manager of a Vancouver brewing company, who is a teetotaler, walked into a youth conference on alcohol Tuesday and tried to sell delegates on the moderate use of alcohol.

Reg Mullens, 41, of Caribou Brewing Company, explained he didn't drink because "I find I am a more effective executive... if I keep my senses. Individual constitutions vary enormously in their ability to handle the stuff. I don't feel too self-confident and decided not to test mine."

TEMPERANCE BODY

Here on a business trip, Mr. Mullens attended some sessions of the conference sponsored by the Ontario Temperance Federation.

"I would tell any student who asked me that alcohol should be used in moderation. Its real use in our society is as a social food, but we should be careful because it carries special dangers."

Conference director Thomas A. Knott said:

"When news of this gets out I guess we'll get about 500 letters at home office."

NO HOB-NOBBLING

Lorne J. Henry, chairman of the conference's sponsoring committee, said:

"We want to make it plain to parents of these students that their children are not hobnobbing with leaders of the brewing industry."

Sharing the Work

IN discussing industrial conditions on the West Coast the Winnipeg Free Press says the municipal governments of Victoria and Vancouver are unwilling to face economic facts when they bombard the federal government for shipbuilding contracts. A prairie paper so far from salt water cannot be expected to be familiar with the needs of shipbuilding, but in one respect they are like grain problems—the Free Press would fight hard against any trend inimical to prairie farmers.

The West Coast is aware that its higher costs of living make it difficult to compete with other regions. It does not consider that "the world owes British Columbia a living," but it does suggest that where government contracts are concerned the West Coast cannot be left out of account. Private shipowners may place their orders where best suits their pockets, and B.C. yards grin and bear any disappointments; this brings in view of the higher costs of production.

With federal ships the case is much different. Just as cabinet ministers are drawn from all parts of the country in order that the nation as a whole may be represented in government, so is there a duty to share federal work of all kinds in as widespread a fashion as possible. This may involve the consideration that price is not necessarily the sole criterion.

A prairie paper may not appreciate it, but any nation with three long coastlines is in the maritime business. There is thus an obligation to maintain the shipbuilding industry, for its coastal trade and for the export of the nation's goods. It is not up to Ottawa to bulwark all this, but a legitimate share of federal contracts helps to keep shipbuilding alive. In a day of grave emergency, a war for instance, national security may hinge on the capacity of Canadian yards to build the tonnage that then becomes imperative.

There are other factors. The West Coast yards build fine ships and—in spite of higher labor and production costs—build them faster than most yards elsewhere. This is an indication of skill and efficiency which it would be detrimental to Canadian welfare to disperse and lose. There is the point also that disparity with Eastern costs is not so great as it seems; all federal expenditures which give work and stimulate the economy result in a return by way of tax monies. The greater the number of ships built in B.C. therefore the larger this proportionate return to the federal treasury.

Wrong End of the Stick

A TRAFFIC official in Ontario who publicly declaimed against the insertion into the Criminal Code of the offence of impaired driving as a cushion for influential people against the more serious charge of drunken driving seems to have taken hold of the wrong end of the stick. Recollection of circumstances leading up to the amendment of the code several years ago produces reasons directly opposite to those suggested by the Kitchener officer.

The offence of impaired driving was created mainly to plug a loophole through which many well-to-do or influential drivers were escaping conviction. The minimum penalty for drunken driving was and still is a jail sentence of seven days. Because of reluctance on the part of many magistrates to send people of good standing to prison for the offence of driving while drunk, the police in most parts of Canada were finding it extremely difficult to secure convictions on that charge; consequently people about whose guilt there could be little real doubt were going scot free. There was also the further complication that no clear definition existed of what constitutes drunkenness within the meaning of the code.

Since the inclusion of the lesser charge of impaired driving, punishable on first conviction by a fine at the magistrate's discretion, the police have been able to proceed with a much greater degree of confidence against those drivers who through drinking render themselves a danger to the public. The number of convictions has sky-rocketed, and as a result there has been inculcated in most motorists a dread of falling foul of the police after they have been drinking.

It is a gross misrepresentation of fact—certainly in this province at any rate—for anyone in authority to describe the lesser charge as a cushion for the protection of "big wheels" and "higher-ups." On the contrary it has created, for the public, especially at holiday times like these, a measure of protection not previously enjoyed.

Perpetual Air-Highways

TRANSPORT MINISTER HEES, looked into the crystal ball the other day and came up with a bright and reasonable prediction for the future of air traffic in the world. He envisaged the time 15 or 20 years hence when transcontinental flights in Canada and across oceans would be at 75,000 feet altitude at speeds ranging upward from 1,800 miles per hour. In the middle range, he suggested, would be regional and inter-regional air traffic jogging along at a comfortable 600 miles per hour. At surface levels would be ordinary flights of local origination.

Depending on the development of jet flight and its adaptation to civilian needs, such predictions are by no means farfetched. It may be challenging to think of crossing Canada in a few hours, or jumping the Atlantic between a morning conference and a noon meal, but these things surely will come to pass. The world in its time-phase will be a smaller obstacle to distance than it has ever been.

One salient feature of the new air-oceans of the world is that they will be indestructible. No one need "maintain" the air's support at 75,000 feet, it will be there forever. Also for each 1,000 feet of altitude there is a waiting air-highway, distinct from all others and crossing none of them.

For once in his life man will be able to go anywhere he wishes, providing he is accommodated with a suitable vehicle. So, on to the year 1975 and round-the-world excursions matching the transit of the sun.

Interpreting the News

The Issue of Command

By WELLINGTON LONG
United Press International

PARIS (UPI)—Frenchmen do not want their armed forces to serve under foreign generals.

That is the reason, the French say, for France's opposition to military integration with NATO.

They shrug off American and British statements favoring integration. The French say the Americans and British don't really mean what they say about integrating their forces into international commands.

American and British units may be in "integrated commands," the French note, but those commands always are headed by an American or British officer.

The French say that not a single American soldier in France is commanded by anyone but another American—from his sergeant to battalion commander right up to the NATO ladder to supreme Allied commander, Gen. Lauris Norstad, also an American.

British air defence is "integrated."

But, say the French, their air defence zones cover the British Isles and northern Germany and in both British units are dominant and British officers command all the way up the NATO chain.

West Germany's forces are "integrated" into NATO, according to the French, because the Allies agreed Germany could remain only if controls were in other than German hands.

As for the smaller NATO members, such as Belgium and Luxembourg, the French say they cannot afford to oppose integration nor are they strong enough to win top positions in integrated commands.

French President Charles de Gaulle talks much about the "national mission" of each NATO member and the growing national responsibilities each now has.

But talk to the men on the line and it boils down to the fact that no Frenchman wants to serve under a non-French general.

Thinking Aloud

Gerald Waring

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

A FRENCH thinker of the long ago, meditating on the heavens, wrote that "the eternal silence of these infinite spaces terrifies me."

One can appreciate that. The hush of the heavens is a mysterious wonder. Nor have sputniks dispelled it.

Walk out on the Canadian prairie of a winter's night, for instance, and look up to the sky, incandescent with a million stars which illuminate the snow. The immensity and the stillness impel awe.

Be in an earth tremor, some evening in Victoria perhaps, and when the rumble ceases there comes a silence, so deep and eerie it can almost be felt.

Thus the elemental mystery of the cosmos.

Man of course, being of the curious ilk he is, never stops trying to unravel the Ps and Qs of himself and all around him. At this moment a Victorian is planning with others to probe the waters of the Dead Sea, for example, in search of the lost ruins of Sodom and Gomorrah.

The Biblical story is that these ancient cities were "consumed" for their sins by fire and brimstone, while the more earthy and less picturesque explanation is that they were submerged by an earthquake.

These varying accounts are not incompatible; they depend on the emphasis of one's bent of belief.

At this season of the year the emphasis is on the celestial aspect, which need not conflict with more mundane assumptions provided one does not rule out the guiding hand.

And for all his worldly accomplishments man needs a guiding hand, don't you think?

Not unnaturally, however—and indeed inherent in his birthright—man is intensely curious about his self and his beginnings. His curiosity in fact probably reflects the divine spark within him.

Rachel Carson, for example, in her absorbing recital of the sea and how it encompassed and populated the earth, depicts the growth and development of humankind from a teeny wee amoeba which clung to the rocks and nourished itself to greater things.

This is a most flattering theory. At least it is disconcerting to think that one emerged from a piece of protoplasm; one would like to cherish a more majestic entry into world affairs. But I suppose there need be small quarrel if this is not assumed to be just a matter of luck.

It is decidedly hard to believe at least that "Hamlet" and the "Messiah" eventuated by mere accident.

A physicist at Cornell has contrived a new version of the mystery of life, equally intriguing if even less complimentary. His surmise is that billions of years ago space travellers from other planets passed our way and left their refuse behind.

And that the bacteria therein grew itself into thinking reeds.

If this be so one presumes the moon is due for a similar visitation one of these years, complete with garbage cans, left opened.

But who in the Christmas season would accept such a demeaning theory of the glory of mankind? Imagine a Beethoven sonata coming out of a refuse heap!

Last Year
In Office

By MARQUIS CHILDS

NO American, either in or out of office, has received the vast adulation given Dwight Eisenhower. By comparison the plaudits showered on Woodrow Wilson at the end of the First World War were a passing phenomenon marking the brief interlude of American intervention in Europe.

To a people conditioned to isolation and self-sufficiency, Wilson's accolade in Paris, London and Rome was an affront. Who did this man think he was that he could court the favor of the European crowd? National jealousy helped to explain Wilson's tragic downfall and the doom of his concept of a League of Nations.

With Eisenhower both the acclaim and the response are of a different order. Clearly the extraordinary nature of this tribute is as much for the nation as the man. And it is a cause for national pride that millions should pour into the streets in distant cities to cheer an American president.

But what of the man himself—the soldier-hero from Abilene? Is it possible to pass through strange lands welcomed as a triumphant hero-statesman and yet remain a plain American untouched by so much glorification? On the answer to this question a great deal turns for Eisenhower's last year in office, for the nature of the presidency itself, and perhaps also for the Republican party.

The triumphal tour has come on top of the great initiative the president took in opening conversations with Premier Khrushchev. It has been Eisenhower's year. He has emerged from the shadows of those once close to him who seemed to be making the decisions and directing the show.

Outwardly, for all the transformation that 1959 has wrought, the president appears unchanged. He is the warm-hearted Midwesterner speaking earnest platitudes that carry the weight of his simple conviction. One of the remarkable things about the tour just ended was the sameness everywhere of the star of the troupe.

Whether at Karachi or Kabul, Madrid or Morocco he never varied his performance. His response to his environment was so restricted that it made for a certain monotony. The scene varied strikingly from day to day and almost from hour to hour, but the lines were the same.

In every capital he visited he made an effort to speak to the American embassy personnel, telling them they were all ambassadors and should get to know the people they were living among. "The criticisms we have of another people because they are different in their background, their traditions and their prejudices than we are—all right let's ignore them and have a good laugh on it and drink a Coca-Cola..." he said in Paris, adding with a good-natured grin that he should not have put in the "commercial" but should have said a soft drink.

Yet, while he has outwardly changed little during his annual mirabilia, those who see him at close range believe that the most powerful elective office in the world has worked its way with him as it has with all occupants of the White House. He sees no one on the political scene in whom he can wholeheartedly believe as his successor. This is one of the commonest symptoms of the presidential power complex.

With one more year of his second term to run Eisenhower finds himself in a position that could scarcely have been anticipated a few years ago. After his heart attack and again after the ileitis operation and the stroke his condition was considered precarious and his life expectancy uncertain. He has now come through the most horrendous risks—both to his health and his security with huge crowds almost entirely out of hand—looking as well and as strong as at any time during his occupancy of the White House.

Whether consciously or unconsciously, the thought must have crossed his mind that if on his crusade for peace an assassin's bullet or a sudden seizure had brought him down he would have become one of the great martyr presidents. In the American pantheon he would have had a place alongside Lincoln as one who gave his life in the cause of humanity.

It is a sobering reflection that if Eisenhower survives two full terms in the White House he will be only the second Republican president to do so. Ulysses S. Grant was the first and last Republican to serve the traditional eight years.

Eisenhower, as the year ends, is on the crest. He has enlisted the imagination of the world living under the shadow of nuclear annihilation. On the eve of a new decade he has made himself the herald of peace. If it proves a false dawn, then the blame is not likely to fall on him but on those who come after him.

Reports from Ottawa

THERE were two great economic occurrences in Canada in 1959: the end of the recession, and the advent of tight money. As the economy got rolling again there was not enough money, or credit, to meet legitimate needs for working capital, and capital to invest in new business plants and new housing.

Today the signs point to an increase in these capital needs in 1960.

This week Trade Minister Churchill made public a 14-page "Review of Canada's Economy in 1959 and Outlook for 1960." Nowhere in it does he even mention tight money. But if you read between the lines there is ample support for the belief that tight or tighter money will be with us for a good while yet.

"Capital outlays by the business community will increase substantially," Churchill forecast. "Total investment, both public and private, will be up in the coming year." These predictions must mean that the strong demand for credit in 1959 will be stronger in 1960.

The antidote for tight money is action by the Bank of Canada: either to increase the money supply or to support the price of government bonds so the chartered banks can sell their bonds to get money to lend without incurring serious losses on their bonds.

The central bank has eschewed both these courses since it last substantially augmented the money supply, in October, 1958. Since then prices have increased only slightly. But if money now becomes tighter, it may be opportune for the bank to ease the tight credit rein on the economy.

As to why Churchill doesn't mention tight money—well, it would be a rare trade minister indeed, who would do aught but exude optimism in a year-end report. However, Churchill and the country have a lot to be pleased with and optimistic about. Production is sharply up, employment is buoyant. People have more money and they're spending more and saving more than ever before. Living standards are rising. The chances of slipping back into recession or rushing headlong into inflation appear slight.

Churchill's optimism ignores weak spots, uncertainties and dark clouds, where it doesn't slap on some rosy paint.

"New job opportunities have kept ahead of the expanding labor force and unemployment has declined." A partial truth. The rest of it is that 4.7 per cent of all workers were out of jobs Nov. 30, with the heaviest seasonal layoffs still to come.

Again: "Cash returns to farmers have been well sustained."

Total farm income rose 2 per cent in 1959; but so did the prices of the things the farmer buys, so the farmer was no better off this year-end than last. The department of agriculture forecasts that net farm income will decline in 1960.

Not a word does Churchill have to say about the great external trade anxiety: that the two European free trade areas, the Common Market and the Outer Seven, may greatly reduce their member-countries' need for Canadian goods.

Nor does the minister have any comment on production costs, which threaten to price Canadian manufactured goods out of world markets.

The serious omissions from the minister's review and forecast do not diminish its value to those who recognize its deficiencies. But the danger is that most people may take the minister's professional optimism as the whole truth about the economic climate and outlook, and conclude that all is well. All isn't.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

INSTEAD of making New Year resolutions, I find a good many of my friends and contacts uttering New Year hopes.

It is an interesting sidelight on the decay and decline of individualism. Instead of standing forth and declaring one's resolves for the new year, 1960, man, glancing fearfully over his shoulder, voices pious hopes.

"I hope," said the insurance executive sitting against me in the home-bound bus, "these TV commercials people will realize that it would be just as tiresome to run the same show every day as to run the same old commercials every day. They spend millions on new shows every time. But there's the same old commercial! If it didn't sell me the first time, it only makes me hostile the fifth time."

"I hope," said the schoolboy with a large schoolbag on his knees, sitting across from us, "two or three of these world figures pass away this year. It would be cheerful to see some strangers deciding our fate for a change."

"Me," said the bus driver, who was within hearing, "I hope it's a short winter, with not much wet snow."

"I," I said, "hope the sun rises in the east every morning, and sets in the west, despite all that science can do."

What are your hopes for 1960?

The Devil Whispered

(From The Toronto Globe and Mail)

BECAUSE he considered abstract art to be rubbish, Mr. Charles Caron, a student at the University of Ottawa, threw bits of rubbish together, painted them over, called the result "Clown," and won an exhibition award. Mr. Alan Jarvis, the judge, said it was "very, very cleverly done."

The Devil whispered behind the leaves, "It's pretty, but is it art?" wrote Kipling—a typical Devil's innuendo, for the answer would depend on intent. If the designer sought ugliness, it wasn't art; if he sought prettiness, it was, since art is "the application of skill to subjects of taste." Mr. Caron's taste was for ridicule, via burlesque, so he seems to have contrived his own convictions. He had an idea and he "very, very cleverly" executed it—which is art.

The moral seems to apply 'not to artists but to viewers of art, who are too apt to call abstract art 'bad because it is abstract. Moreover, Mr. Caron moves in classic company, for there are clowns in all the arts; and those who gained renown did so only because they were good clowns.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

Everybody has heard of Jules Verne and his "Around the World in 80 Days," "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," "Trip to the Moon," etc.

But few people know that Verne was also the author of one of the most perfect mystery-and-adventure stories ever written.

The name of the book is "In Search of the Castaways." The copy I own was printed in the United States in 1873. As far as I know, the book has never been reprinted and is now completely forgotten.

"In Search of the Castaways" is an ingenious combina-

Longitude Unknown

Lord Glenarvan, owner of the yacht Duncan, tries to work out the puzzle and finds that Harry Grant, captain of a Scottish ship that was lost at sea two years before, is stranded somewhere with two of his shipmates. One of the pieces of paper shows the latitude of 37 degrees 11' South, but unfortunately none of the versions shows the longitude. From the letters "gonic" in the French version Lord Glenarvan figures that Captain Grant must be somewhere in Patagonia, South America. He decides to go to Patagonia himself with his yacht, taking along his wife and the two young children of Captain Grant, 16-year-old Mary and 12-year-old Robert. There is also a magnificent character, the French geographer Paganel, who has absently-mindedly boarded the Duncan instead of a French liner and has decided to come along to South America just for the ride.

The party lands in Chile and travels across South America along the 37th parallel. No sign of Captain Grant, but they have plenty of exciting adventures along the way.

Sail to Australia

So they sail to Australia, cross the whole continent, again braving all sorts of adventures, and finally reach Australia's east coast. Then the same thing happens all over again. They cross New Zealand, have hair-raising adventures with Maori cannibals, and reach the New Zealand east coast. Still no Captain Grant. Suddenly, passing by the tiny Maria Theresa Island in the South Pacific, Captain Grant's children think they hear the voice of their father calling during the night. Next morning they land on the island, and there are Captain Grant and his two shipmates, crying with joy.

And in the last chapter with Maori cannibals, from memory, the true version of the papers in the bottle that have sent the Duncan on its exciting trip around the world.

New Year's Triplets Will Be Lucky—If

If Greater Victoria's first 1960 baby is one of triplets, and the triplets are all boys, and they are named Maurice, Barley and Bruce, their parents are going to be really lucky.

Under those circumstances, Maurice, Barley and Bruce Humber will furnish their entire home free, including a television set and antenna. But "even if it's one little girl," Humber's will give the first baby a high chair.

This is only one of the gifts awaiting Greater Victoria's first baby of the new year. Page the Cleaner will give $1,000 cash if the first arrivals are quintuplets, a $10 dry cleaning certificate otherwise. Dorman's will give the fathers of the first babies at the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals Stetson hats.

McLennan, McFeely & Prior will give the first baby a playpen pad, Stylerite Shoes a pair of baby shoes, and Babyland an imported baby bath. Peter Pan Children's Wear Ltd. will give a $10 merchandise certificate, and Balantyne's a floral arrangement in a baby-boot motif to the mother.

The Daily Colonist will give the parents a $5 merchandise scrip which can be used at any of the contributing stores.

Charm won't begin to fade until she reaches 150, says British walkathon champion Barbara Moore, 56. The "superwoman" hopes to have a baby when she is 100—merely "middle age" in life-span stretched out on a diet of fruit, nuts, water and honey.

Her husband, sculptor Harry Moore, 47, was asked if he will be the father. "I intend to," is he a superman? "Well, I'm going to be fit enough to see that she has it."

Six 'Blind Pigs' Known in City

Like Vancouver, Victoria has a number of bootleg liquor establishments operating and known to city police—but on a vastly smaller scale.

Where the mainland city's Police Chief George Archer said in a letter to the city's mayor that 84 "blind pigs" were known to Vancouver police, Police Chief John Blackstock said there were at least six in Victoria.

All those here have been charged or convicted, some more than once.

Chief Seeks Changes In Laws

Two comments by Chief Archer:

There was no reason to change our operations, with the exception of pressing for Crown appeals.

There should be changes in liquor legislation to make it an offence to be found in a known or convicted bootlegging establishment.

Said Chief Blackstock: "This would make it easier for the police to enforce the law."

It would then be necessary only for the Crown to prove a previous conviction of the operator, and the fact that he was still operating, rather than prove a sale of liquor.

New Dangers Lurk In Drinking Water

CHICAGO (AP)—Drinking water is being polluted by hundreds of new chemical products whose effects on human health are totally unknown, a water expert warns.

These include plastics, detergents and insecticides, and cannot be completely removed from water now by standard methods, said H. W. Poston of the United States public health service's water supply and pollution control division.

VIEWS of SPORT

By Red Smith

It was the year the Yankees lost the pennant, but if anybody foresaw that, he kept his secret safe from Charles Dillon Stengel. "I don't think," Mr. Stengel said in March, "there's any one team in the American League that's strengthened to such a great degree that they could catch us if our boys put out for the five and a half months. Now by that I mean Chicago White Sox. I think they're amazing, they got the fastest base-running team in baseball, they can steal bases, steal bases, but when it comes to hitting our club can out-hit 'em."

The man is seldom altogether wrong. There wasn't, as he said, one team good enough to catch the Yankees. There were two.

It was June before the giants of American letters could explain to their ghost writers what a lucky, stupid bum Stengel had been over the last 10 years, and by that time there had been distractions.

In Louisville, Sword Dancer had been beaten a nose by Tommy Lee, and although some witnesses thought Sword Dancer had been knocked about a bit, they had to be mistaken, for the Kentucky Derby is the cleanest of all races. In 85 years it hasn't had a foul.

I Boomed You at Jamaica

Sword Dancer was marked for the American championship and he won it like the smasher he is, but it did demand a lot of winning. Second again in the Preakness—behind Royal Orbit, this time—he won the Belmont Stakes but still drew only passing notice from the crowd, whose eyes were fixed on a limp figure lying face down in the mud on the stretch turn.

This, witnesses realized with a horrid chill, was Eddie Arcaro whose mount, Black Hills, had broken down under him. "Got well" letters poured in while Eddie was recuperating. Many said, "I am one of those who boo you at Jamaica," and there must be the text of a sermon in this for the guy eloquent enough to preach it.

Now the distaff side moved in. While a toothy little kid from Vian, Okla., stood cutting up touches with Queen Elizabeth II in Toronto, this was Bobby Ussery, who won Canada's 100-year-old Queen's Plate aboard New Providence—a big guy from Sweden was pleasuring himself in feminine company at Grossinger's in the Catskills. In his co-educational training camp Ingemar Johansson, challenger for the heavy-weight championship of the world, talked in mystical terms about his right hand, "as though," Bill Heinz said, "it was an uncle from Stockholm."

In Summit, N.J., Floyd Patterson lived like a cloistered monk. Then in Yankee Stadium he fought like a choirboy. Johansson's big right hand showed up, special delivery. Bofo for the old homestead.

Casper Good 'Mudder

Summer was lucumen in. A big, jovial mudder named Billy Casper was United States Open golf champion, having left his field mired in the sudden fairways of the Winged Foot Club in Westchester County. Baseball fans gazed mournfully at the receding backs of Stan Musial, Ted Williams, Hank Bauer, Yogi Berra. The San Francisco Giants looked like winners in the National League. The literati wrote volumes proving that Casey Stengel never had known anything about managing a ball club.

On a sultry evening in Montreal, Archie Moore, boy thespian, slugged Yvon Durelle, boy fisherman, colder than a New Brunswick codfish. Ninety miles away in Winooski, Vt., the New York Giants butted heads in preparation for a football season that would lead them into another championship play-off with the Baltimore Colts.

On orders from Ray Robinson, the New York State Athletic Commission redesignated Ray Robinson middleweight champion of the world. Thereupon Gene Fullmer boxed Carmen Basilio in San Francisco, made the best fight of his life stopped the tough onion from Canastota, and won title recognition from the National Boxing Association.

In the American League, the White Sox ran off and hid, with the Yankees third. In the National, the champions died harder. As the Giants fell on their heads, the Braves raced Los Angeles to a dead heat. The Dodgers won the play-off. Milwaukee missed Red Schoendienst and besides that, Walter O'Malley needed the money.

'Looked Better Throwing It'

Walter got it from a world series that drew crowds of 92,000-plus in Smogland, where courageous but dazzled outfielders cringed and covered under fly balls. Forty years earlier a Chicago team of extraordinary ability had lost a world series on purpose. Now a White Sox team of small skills and great sincerity lost in spite of itself. "They looked better throwing it," a man said after the sixth and final game.

In football the big fish ate the little fish, as custom has decreed since Nov. 6, 1869. Largest and most voracious was Syracuse, of the decadent Eastern puddle. Black Forest Ben Schwartzwalder, the paratroop officer of the 82nd Airborne who now commands Syracuse forces, has issued an order for the New Year's Day engagement in the Cotton Bowl: "Take no prisoners."

Averaging 17 years each, Gallagher's rink outlasted veteran Morley MacDonald 13-8 in capturing the sixth Commercial Spiel.

The Gallagher rink, young local winner ever, grabbed a 10-6 lead after eight ends and coasted to the upset victory. MacDonald had counted six on the third end to erase a 4-0 Gallagher lead before the youngsters rallied.

Gallagher tied it at 6-6 with two on the fourth and counted singles on the next four ends to pull away.

Comprising the rink are Gallagher, 18, third John Balloch, 18, second Tom McKain, 20, and Bob Gallagher, at 12 probably the youngest lead ever to play in the bonspiel.

MacDonald came back with two on the ninth end but by that time it was too little and

Olmedo Loses To Segura

MELBOURNE (AP)—Alex Olmedo, ace of the last two U.S. Davis Cup teams, suffered his fourth defeat in five pro matches Wednesday when he lost to Pancho Segura of Ecuador, 6-2, 6-4. They are playing in a $13,400 pro tourney in Kooyong Stadium.

Ken Rosewall of Australia remained undefeated when he spilled the veteran Frank Sedgman, 10-8, 6-3. In another all-Australian match, Lew Had downed Mal Anderson, 6-4, 6-4.

Empire Middle King Beats Holly Mims

CHICAGO (AP)—Dick Tiger, British Empire middleweight boxing champion, kept the pressure on Holly Mims

Wednesday night in hammering out a 10-round decision in Chicago Stadium.

Tiger, ranked No. 6 on the National Boxing Association contenders list, missed frequently with his most potent weapon, a left hook, but kept his veteran Washington, D.C., opponent against the ropes most of the time.

Mims, who now has lost three consecutive bouts since October and is unranked by the NBA, was at his best coming off the ropes and constantly made Tiger break off the exchanges.

But Tiger, a Nigerian, proved much the stronger and got in the harder licks as he kept stalking Mims.

Mims weighed 155 pounds for the televised bout, Tiger 160.

Referee Bernard Weissman scored it 47-47 under the five-point must system. Judge John Bray favored Tiger 48-43 and judge Harold Marovitz had Tiger ahead 49-43. The Associated Press picked Tiger 47-45.

The quotes came from Roy Cohn, former counsel for the U.S. Senate investigating group headed by the late Senator Joe McCarthy and now head of a new organization called Feature Sports Incorporated.

Cohn announced yesterday the fight will be held in New York's Polo Grounds, set the dates and applied for a promoter's licence. He also said "we and the Johansson group are in complete harmony on all matters and we anticipate no difficulty."

With Cohn in buying the rematch contract from Rosen-

Fisticuff-Filled First Period Highlight of 5-3 Cougar Win

By JIM TANG

Victoria Cougars last night got back what they claimed was taken away from them in Seattle Sunday night when they defeated the Totems, 5-3, in a seething Western Hockey league game at Memorial Arena which erupted in the first period and was never too far from it the rest of the way.

The 2,702 fans, who formed the largest mid-week crowd of the season, had hardly a dull moment during the 60 minutes of blistering action which featured a first-period brawl involving 11 players, considerable confused officiating and probably five of the softest goals scored in one game this season.

Three of them were Seattle's, and they almost cost the Cougars the points.

Unscheduled action started late in the first period when Seattle forward Gerry Goyer cross-checked Jack Bionda under the chin.

It was an error in judgement, Goyer was in a fair way of being taken apart when one of his teammates came to lend a hand. That was the signal for every player on the ice except the goalies to get into the spirit of things.

They were joined from the bench by Cougar forward Don Blackburn, who has been thirsting for action—any kind of action—and in a matter of seconds the north-east corner of Memorial Arena resembled a triple tag-team wrestling match.

CHANGED PARTNERS It was hard to single out who fought who because of the considerable changing of partners. Bionda divided his attentions impartially and it was noted that little Arnie Schmutz was doing a bit better than alright with big Frank Arnett until the two hit the ice. There, Bionda broke things up before further damage was done.

Referee Al Paradice let the battle run its course, then handed out penalties to all the warriors. Bionda got a major and a minor, Goyer two minors and the other eight one minor each. Blackburn will contribute the automatic $10 fine for declaring himself in.

It took almost 20 minutes to get hockey action restarted, and then there were further delays for discussions about when players were entitled to get back on the ice. They probably helped quieten matters down, there being no further trouble although the situation remained touchy.

FINE HOCKEY It was four-a-side hockey for more than six minutes but when the clubs got back to full strength, they turned in a lot more of the fine hockey which has featured their games this season.

The Cougars, who got a good start with two rather fortunate goals only to get tied at 2-2 and 3-3, again, as almost always on home ice, should have won handily but some fine puck-blocking by goalkeeper Bev Bentley and Seattle's three cheap goals made it a tough two points.

Art Jones led the Cougars with his 19th and 20th goals. His first was the first of the game, the second the game winner—and also the 100th goal of the season for the Cougars, last club to reach the century mark.

EMPTY NET Sharing offensive honors with Jones was the battling Schmutz, who helped Jones on both his goals, then fought his way into position for a shot at the unguarded Seattle net in the last minute and found his target to make victory certain. Haworth and Ford each had a goal and an assist and Goodwin two assists.

Cougars got off to a bad start when Paradice disallowed a goal scored after only 53 seconds. The puck, passed out by George Ford, caromed onto Goodwin's skate and into the net. It appeared as if Goodwin had a leg in the crease but the Cougars claimed Paradice contended it had been kicked in.

But Jones put them ahead when Jim Bay's blue-line sizzler deflected off his stick and Ford gave them a 2-0 lead when his quick shot after a face-off to the right of Bentley deflected off Seattle-defence man Gordie Sinclair's leg.

Another deflection got Seattle back in the game, and the Totems pulled even when the clubs played two men short on a soft goal scored by Bill Davidson. And after Haworth had put the Cougars ahead late in the second period on a play set up by Ford, the Totems pulled even again when McVie redirected a wide shot with his skates when he was blanketed by two Cougars.

But it was to end well, for the Cougars that is. Jones got his sixth game-winning goal, high in the league, with a high backhand after a wild scramble inside the Seattle blue-line and Schmutz locked it up with the Totems pressing with six attackers against a Cougar defence which tightened ed up as the game neared its end.

Seattle—Goal, Bentley; defence, Hunt, Sinclair, Arnett, Davidson, Ford, Fillion, MacParland, Roloff, Fillion, McVie, Powers, Ginnell, Goyer, Leonard, Chippa.

Victoria—Goal, Pelletier; defence, Wright, Bionda, Hay, Matthews, Ford, Fillion, Ginnell, Leonard, Sinclair, Fillion, Schmutz, Anderson, Wilson, Macaulay, Blackburn.

Referee: Al Paradice; linesmen, Toby Brown, John Smith.

Anti-Semitism Gains Momentum

BRUNSWICK, Germany (AP) — Another outbreak of anti-Jewish incidents hit West Germany Wednesday and authorities began cracking down on Rightists.

Interior Minister Gerhard Schroeder announced the federal government will re-investigate the Reich party to determine whether the federal constitutional court should be asked to ban it.

Two Reich party members have confessed to smearing swastikas and anti-Jewish slogans on the new synagogue at Cologne on Christmas Eve in the first of the new series of incidents.

In the latest series of incidents to be reported, swastikas and slogans saying "death to the Jews" and "out with the Jews" were painted on Brunswick's monument for war dead and victims of Nazism.

Police at Rheindt said windows of several shops there, one owned by a Jew, had been smeared with Hitler symbols on Christmas night. A Jewish shopkeeper said the word "pig" was painted on his window.

In Hesse, an 85-year-old Jewish survivor of the Resenstadt (Terezin) concentration camp was anonymously threatened with crucifixion, state authorities said.

In Offenbach, near Frankfurt, a half-Jewish resident reported that swastikas and the word "Jew" were scratched on his car.

Swastikas appeared on a Roman Catholic church in the Ruhr city of Gelsenkirchen.

Life One Long Walk

Near-Sighted Old Lady Continually on the Go

DUNCAN—Some Indians call her "Chickadee," but to the non-Indian community she is called "The Walker."

Tiny Josephine Charlie, born in 1880, can't see 20 feet in front of her and yet thin, nothing of walking five miles to visit a friend.

There are older persons here, but few of Josephine's age who can match her when it comes to walking.

"I have been walking all ways," she says. Her legs carried her into the home of Tsu-Tsan—now referred to as Red Cap—where she lived for almost a year in 1895. At one time Red Cap was the most influential Indian in the district and it is said chiefs always discussed their plans with him. His Big House was on the Genoa Bay Road where Camp Imadene is today.

"Chickadee" was born at Chemainus Bay and was one of the first pupils when the Catholic Residential School opened at Kuper Island.

She was a beauty who married Moses Charlie, who became a chief of the Cowichan people.

"She's a grand old lady," said Indian police constable Adam Jimmy, one of her distant cousins. He said the people watch out for her.

Josephine takes care of herself in her home on the Quamichan part of the Cowichan Reserve, two miles west of here. During the summer, at least twice a week, she walks into town and then, most times, several miles out of her way to visit.

Six years ago she was knocked down by a car, but she still walks. Oldtimers shake their heads as she shuffles by, carrying her cane and a bag she clutches to her bright, multi-colored clothing.

Josephine Keeps Going

Woman Hurlled 25 Feet In Esquimalt Collision

Eighteen-year-old Mrs. Irene Frank, thrown 20 to 25 feet when two cars collided at Esquimalt and Canteen about 11.30 last night, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by Esquimalt police.

Her husband, Bernard Frank, HMCS Margaree, driver of one car, said a door on the passenger side came open during the crash and that his wife flew "20 to 25 feet." Name of the other driver was not immediately known.

Boy Cyclist Injured In Collision with Car

James Perey, 13, of 515 Gorge, was treated at Royal Jubilee Hospital for abrasions to the arm and leg, after his bicycle was in collision with a car at Hillside and Rock Bay at 3.45 p.m. yesterday.

Police said the car was driven by Mrs. Frances Putnam, of 1958 Hampshire. The boy was taken to hospital in a police ambulance.

Boy MPs Condemn Hanging, Alcoholism

Resolutions condemning capital punishment and calling for a government-organized program to educate the public on the dangers of alcoholism were passed last night by members of the 29th Older Boys' Parliament.

The resolutions were the two big items on the agenda at the sessions, which close this afternoon.

Considerable debate followed presentation of the resolution putting parliament on record as being against capital punishment. Members used Biblical quotations to back up both sides of the question. "An eye for an eye," "Thou shalt not kill," "Vengeance is mine"—and presented statistics on the effect of abolition of capital punishment in other countries.

However, when the question was presented, the resolution passed virtually unopposed.

More time and money are spent on rehabilitation of alcoholics than on preventive education, the resolution on alcoholism stated, and alcoholism in British Columbia is increasing at an alarming rate.

"There are 20,000 alcoholics in B.C.," one member pointed out, "and only one item justifying extensive sale of liquor—the $73,000,000 taken in by the Liquor Board in the province last year."

The resolution, which passed unanimously called for an education program and urged members to take steps to become better informed on the harmful effects and the consequences of the consumption of alcoholic beverages.

New England

Floods Strike Again

BOSTON (UPI)—Another flood tide battered the New England coast yesterday in the wake of a killer nor'easter which took at least 10 lives, caused property damage close to $2,000,000 and threatened water pollution.

Flood tide struck the coast and coastal communities, still fighting the effects of Tuesday's tide, highest in 108 years, were flooded anew.

The Red Cross declared Hull, Mass., a disaster area, estimating that 150 to 300 families would need emergency and long-range assistance in replacing lost possessions and repairing flood-wrecked homes.

The 13-foot swell, one foot above normal, came within about 16 inches of equalling Tuesday's 14.3-foot wave.

Thousands of suburban and rural homes in western New York state remained powerless Wednesday as work crews pushed the exhausting job of repairing electric lines tumbled by Monday night's sleet.

As the effects of the worst ice storm in recent western New York history continued into the third day, householders not dependent on electricity for heat or cooking once more opened their homes to neighbors.

Brockport's town hall, where 1,500 ate Tuesday night, was reopened for dinner. And again in Churchville, Webster and Hilton—hard hit Rochester suburbs—heated schools, churches and club halls became hotels for the night.

Death Corner

Burnside-Harriet Gets Light

A new mercury light was installed yesterday at Burnside and Harriet by the city, to improve illumination of the intersection where a woman was killed and two persons injured by a car Sunday.

"Lighting improvements at the intersection were planned two months ago by the city and Saanich," street lighting superintendent Kenneth Reid said. "Saanich has equipment on order, and we had been waiting to make the installation jointly."

The intersection is one-quarter in the city, three-quarters in Saanich.

A new mercury light also was installed by the city yesterday at Gorge and Harriet, Mr. Reid said.

Saanich Prepares for Population Explosion

By TERRY HAMMOND
By the end of the new decade which opens on Friday Saanich will be "the finest residential municipality in British Columbia," Reeve George Chatterton said yesterday.

"We have an almost limitless future."

"We are now the fastest growing municipality in the Greater Victoria area and with the tremendous expansion of population which is taking place we must see ourselves as a predominantly residential community for many years to come.

"Our greatest problem will be the supply of services to the new areas without placing undue strain on the services or the property owners of the older areas.

"To face this problem we must have not only community planning, but long-term financial planning," he said.

He said he will ask the 1960 council to take positive steps toward long-term financial planning.

Council will also be asked by the reeve to give top priority to choosing and acquiring a 10 to 15-acre site for a future municipal hall and combination police-fire building.

He predicted that such would be turned before the end of 1960 for the latter and estimated its cost at approximately $200,000.

Council has already endorsed the principle of housing both services in the same building, he pointed out.

He will ask for similar endorsement of a plan whereby the site for a new municipal hall would be combined with the public protection building site.

"I don't want anything negatively about the site," the reeve continued, "I would like to see a real civic centre there some day."

Under the terms of sale of the municipal yard and fire-hall site on Douglas Street to Dominion Construction Ltd. as a shopping centre location,

Saanich must vacate the main fire station by the end of 1961.

Another major project in 1960, the reeve went on, is to persuade the provincial government to accept Quadra Street as a secondary highway.

If this is accomplished the major thoroughfare should be completely reconstructed by the end of 1960, he stated.

Doctor Warns Uphill Racers Of Heart Risk

Don't run uphill unless you have been running up hills all your life and are in tip-top physical shape, regardless of your age, a prominent Victoria heart specialist warned yesterday.

His statement came in the wake of a public challenge by doughty, 82-year-old Saanich resident John Herbert Gray, who cantered up Little Saanich Hill in 18 minutes flat Tuesday and then, repeated the feat for TV cameramen yesterday.

MANY WILLING

A number of acceptances were forwarded to the Colonist yesterday, one of them from a former Olympic sprinter and onetime Canadian senior track champion.

But the heart specialist was quick to throw cold water on the plans of aspiring contestants.

DON'T START NOW

He said nobody should run uphill who has not kept himself fit all his life and who hasn't made a daily practice of running uphill.

"A regular uphill walk is a wonderful thing," the specialist said, "but racing is an entirely different matter."

"Racing introduces the element of stress and stress is what affects the heart."

WITH IMPUNITY

He said octogenarian hill-runner Gray was in remarkable physical condition for his age and could jaunt up Little Saanich Mountain with relative impunity.

But he stressed that even for the extremely healthy, a

A woman walking along Oak Bay Avenue last night was attacked from behind and thrown to the sidewalk by a burly young man who made off with her purse containing about 75 cents.

It was the fourth time this month that a purse snatcher has attacked women walking alone after dark in a six-block radius south of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

NO ARRESTS

Police have searched the area after each crime was committed, but no arrest has been made and police say there is little they can do in the maze of dark streets until someone comes up with a better description.

ON WAY HOME

Last night's victim, 29-year-old Brenda Taylor, 2324 McNeill, was on her way home from work at a school board office in Craigdarroch Castle when attacked in the 1600 block of Oak Bay Avenue.

"I sensed something," she said. "I don't know why."

KEPT SILENT

"I heard these padding footsteps behind me and I turned around. I was taken by surprise. He didn't say anything."

The man cupped his hand over her mouth and threw her to the sidewalk, grabbed her purse and ran between two nearby homes, Miss Taylor said.

PURSE FOUND

Oak Bay police later found the "viciously torn" purse in the 1000 block McGregor Avenue, about a block away.

Police were told that it had contained only about 75 cents. The thief "was very disappointed with me" Miss Taylor said later.

KEEP EYES OPEN

"People have to walk along those streets," said deputy chief Harry Mercer of the Victoria police department. "They should keep their eyes open to see who's around and make an effort to give police a better description of the man."

IF IT RECURS...

"We hope it won't happen again," he said, "but, if it does, the more we can get on it the quicker we'll get him."

On Dec. 23, 69-year-old Mrs. Mabel Sampson, 1729 Oak Bay, suffered a bruised hip when she fell while fighting off a purse snatcher on Oak Bay between Fell and Chamberlain.

$83 STOLEN

The night before that, a purse containing about $18 was taken from Mrs. Barbara Scott, 45, 1407 Fort, in the 1600 block Fort.

On Dec. 4, a purse containing $65 was taken from Grace Chamberlain, 21, 222 St. Charles, in the 1000 block Richmond.

Liquor Stores Closing Early

All B.C. liquor stores close at 6 p.m. today, so if anyone still needs to stock up on New Year's liquor he had better do so early today.

Cabarets will close at 2 a.m. as usual and all other outlets including cocktail bars and beer parlors will close at 11:30 as usual on New Year's Eve, which is tonight.

They'll Be Working While Others Play

These five essential-service workers will be among dozens who work tonight while Victoria is at play heralding the New Year. Also on the job will be radio and television employees, newspapermen, hotel employees, bus drivers, armed services personnel, night watchmen, doctors, theatre employees, ambulance crews, wrecking truck drivers, ships' crews, airport workers, railroaders, service station staffs and others. Many will not even notice the stroke of midnight go by or hear the sounds of revelry which traditionally split the quiet of the night.—(Colonist photos.)

New City Parking Lot To Open in January

New city parking lot where the public market and firehall used to stand probably will open in two or three weeks and "certainly will open sometime in January," City Engineer James Garnett said yesterday.

No Jobs Until Fall

Outlook Bleak For City Yards

Spokesmen for Victoria shipyards yesterday issued the bleakest New Year forecast in the history of the industry.

The industry has never faced a less promising outlook than that which looms for 1960, said Yarrows Ltd. general manager John A. Wallace.

Harold Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd., said that on the basis of the present outlook his firm's payroll, which has averaged 600 through 1959, will be cut to 250 or 300 by March or April.

He said that the company at present has no work lined up until next fall for its large outfitting crew after outfitting of the provincial government ferry Mr. Sidney is complete in about three months.

Paul ("Chief Thunderbird"), the retired wrestler, saying that since he had his leg injury set right in a Seattle hospital, he was willing to join in any of the proposed foot races for men of 60 and up.

Hawaii Flight Lands Here On Saturday

First inbound, Canadian Pacific Airlines Honolulu flight to land at Patricia Bay Airport will touch down at 5:40 a.m. Saturday, the airline's reservation desk confirmed yesterday.

The new service is designed as a convenience for Victoria-bound passengers who previously have had to land in Vancouver and fly back here.

The Patricia Bay service will operate once each week, on Saturdays.

The flight will leave Honolulu at 6 p.m. on Fridays and will fly here non-stop.

Outbound flights cannot use Patricia Bay Airport because the runways are too short for take-offs with a full load of fuel.

Curfew Bylaw Fails to Pass

A new city curfew bylaw fell short of final approval yesterday after Ald. Mrs. Lily Wilson called it "of no use whatever."

Instead of passing it, council sent it to welfare committee for study.

In its last meeting of the year, council also:

- Voted to drop the idea of seeking legal costs from J. Donald Smith in connection with his suit against the downtown parking and improvement bylaw, which he has said he will abandon.

- Was urged by Ald. D. J. Proudfoot to "make every effort" in 1960 to start building an auditorium.

- Asked for the city solicitor's advice on a radio station's proposal to provide free parking for everyone at meters for a day, to celebrate an anniversary.

- Gave Ald. Proudfoot, defeated in the recent elections, a vase and praise and good wishes.

The proposed new curfew bylaw was designed to overcome technical weaknesses in the present one. It provides, in its draft form, that children under 16 shall be required to be in their homes at 9:30 p.m., that after one warning a child found loitering on the streets after that time may be taken home by a constable, and that a parent or guardian permitting a child or ward habitually to contravene the requirement may be fined not more than $5.

"As far as I can see, it will be ineffective," Ald. Wilson said. "If the bylaw is put through the way it is now, youngsters will have an opportunity to flout the law, and that is very dangerous."

Ald. Proudfoot at first opposed the city paying its own legal costs in connection with the Smith suit, but Mayor Percy Scurrell said the out-of-pocket expense was about $5 and as far as he was concerned, "we are not going to trial with an issue that's dead. We're going to clean it up and get on with our business."

"Since a year ago this thing has been on fire," said Ald. Elmer McEwen, "and it's a good time to bury it."

Ald. Proudfoot urged council to get ahead with auditorium planning because, he said, Premier Bennett had promised a substantial sum toward an auditorium and "if you don't take this opportunity you will never get an opportunity again."

Ald. M. H. Mooney agreed with him, proposing that a special committee be established as one of council's first actions in 1960. But Mayor Scurrell asked him not to press the suggestion "at this meeting."

The radio station's idea of providing free parking by reimbursing the city for the day's loss of revenue and supplying meter hoods was brought before council by Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

"It would involve repeal for the day of the bylaw if you want to be technical," City Solicitor T. P. O'Grady said. "But there's nothing against the city accepting gifts."

"I hardly see how it's feasible," said Ald. Mooney. "If the meters were covered, some people would be put off parking, and some would park all day."

And Ald. Hugh Ramsay said he couldn't support the idea, because the main purpose of meters was to keep traffic moving and because "other establishments from time to time will want the same thing, and we'll be off to the races."

But both agreed to ask the solicitor for further advice.

Mayor Scurrell, presenting the farewell gift to Ald. Proudfoot, told him that "it has been a pleasure working with you. You have always been willing to take on anything required of you."

In-Between Weather To Stay

Several more days of "in-between" weather—neither real wintry nor real mild—were forecast last night by weatherman William Mackie.

He expected sunny skies today with a high of about 40 degrees and some sunshine on Friday morning.

Some wet snow fell in the area yesterday and about an inch of snow fell on the Malahat. Overnight temperatures were expected to range from the low 20s in enclosed areas to the low 30s in open areas, the weatherman said.

ANY NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN THE STRANGE CASE OF CAPTAIN PLOOM, SURE?

NOTHING SPECIAL, DESMOND. WHY?

BEHAW! IT'S ONLY A WANDERER, I THOUGHT AT FIRST IT WAS A RED DANGER SIGNAL...

Garden Notes
Plants Need Nursing
By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Last year, just after the New Year, I was swamped with letters requesting information on how to care for various Christmas gift houseplants. Many of these folks had never before gone in for indoor gardening in any form, and didn't have the foggiest idea what to do for the welfare of the lovely plant which had come to live with them. I made a note in my diary at the time reminding myself to devote several columns to this subject when the post-Christmas season rolled around again.

Let's start with the Poinsettia, probably the most glamorous and dramatic of all our presentation plants. In nature, it is a shrub 10 feet tall or more, native to the southernmost tip of Mexico and throughout Central America. The true flowers are small and uninteresting, greenish yellow in color, and seldom noticed, but the bracts are terrific, huge in size and a brilliant scarlet in the most common types, although the vogue is growing for pink and for pure white Poinsettias.

Coming as it does from the tropical parts of America, the Poinsettia is no stranger to heat, and stands up in our overheated houses better than most presentation plants. It likes full sun, and a temperature between 65 and 70 in the daytime, and around 60 degrees at night. A very common cause of leaf-dropping is too much fluctuation between day and night temperatures, with the temperature dropping too low during the night.

This sensitivity to chilling shows up in the watering 'too, and cold water will often cause the lower leaves to fall off. Refrain from watering until the soil surface is distinctly dry, then give lukewarm water until the whole soil ball is thoroughly saturated. Top-watering is best, and any moisture remaining in the saucer should be emptied within the hour.

The leaves will fall anyhow, anywhere from two weeks to two months after you receive your plant. This doesn't mean your plant is dead, but merely that the dormant period is approaching, and the plant is ready for a rest. When this happens, stop watering and store your Poinsettia in the basement until spring.

In May, cut the stems down to within six inches of the soil, dusting the cut ends with powdered charcoal to help control bleeding. Knock the plant out of its pot, trim back any straggling roots, and repot in fresh soil. The cut-off portions can be made into six-inch cuttings and rooted in damp sand.

Sink the pot up to its rim in a shady part of the outdoor garden. Water sparingly at first, increasing as the plant leafs out. When growth buds appear, rub off all but just a few of the most vigorous, for the fewer stems you have, the bigger will be the scarlet "flowers." Keep well watered throughout the summer, with an occasional pinch of houseplant fertilizer in the water.

The most critical part of the culture, and where most folks go wrong, is when the plant is brought indoors again in the fall. At this period, it is most important that no artificial light be given during the evening hours. The plant must have absolute darkness from sundown to dawn the next day, otherwise there will be no flowers.

Gowns Gripped, Show Didn't
By Fred Danzig

NEW YORK (UPI)—Now that we've met Cyd Charisse, what do we know about her?

Well, let's see. Her one-hour special, "Meet Cyd Charisse," gave us an opportunity to see a beautiful woman clad in magnificent gowns. These gowns gripped a figure that must approach some kind of symmetrical summit. And then Miss Charisse did some badly exaggerated, ill-advised "romantic" dances on the NBC-TV Startime show and spoiled everything.

The main effort, it seemed, was to provide a series of sexy dance numbers. I got the message early, during a "Love Walked In" number that was staged in a "Some Enchanted Evening" setting. While the non-dancing portions of the number displayed a certain dramatic style, the dance itself, performed by Miss Charisse and her talented partner, James Mitchell, lacked that same style and subtlety.

The major number in the show as a tired "Mack the Knife"-type waterfront production called "Hong Kong Ballet," that featured Miss Charisse and Mitchell as passionate lovers. Their exercise hampered away at this intense affection for each other. I haven't seen such manipulations since a French ballet troupe upset our censors with a steaming version of "Carmen" some years ago. Anyhow, the Charisse-Mitchell translation smacked too much of those dreary "purple spotlight" burlesque show numbers. It, too, lacked style and subtlety.

In short, the show was disappointing because it was commonplace and often common.

There were two flashes of wit and airiness, however. One was the dance performed by Miss Charisse and Eve Arden to "Baubles, Bangles and Beads." The other was Miss Arden's ferocious flapper dancing, which was tossed into the midst of an otherwise amateurishly conceived Beatnik sketch.

Songs by Tony Martin, husband of Miss Charisse, also were offered. Now, ordinarily, when a straw hat and cane-bearing hooper comes on, I flip. But, sorry to say, when Martin is dealing, I often find myself laughing. His poses—hands in pockets, head back, back back, eyebrows up, voice down, ego whirling overhead—are too studied, if not too stale, by now.

Another liability was the poor quality of pre-recordings in Miss Charisse's songs. The "Baubles" number, especially, sounded as though it was coming from Senor Wences's suitcase. The rest of the time, Miss Charisse sounded Shirley Temple sweet—when her enunciation was on the beam.

Hollywood Today
$1,000,000 Plus Cleo!

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Marlon Brando wanted $1,000,000 to co-star with Elizabeth Taylor in Walter Wanger's "Cleopatra." Elizabeth is getting $1,000,000, and $2,000,000 for two stars is just too much. But what a combination! Brando has already played Marc Antony in Metro's "Julius Caesar." If he eventually teams with Liz in "Cleo," he would get the girl.

Paul Anka's "Diana" recording, which he also wrote, has sold more than 9,000,000 discs. Fantastic.

Add incredible feats — George Jessel has raised $50,000,000 in bonds for Israel. They're naming a village for him there.

Diana Dors' expected baby cost her $500,000 in cancelled TV shows and appearances in Las Vegas. But she will be catching up with the dollars and coming here with husband Dickie Dawson the early summer. They have formed their own company, like so many stars, in hopes of keeping some of their earnings via capital gains.

Paul Newman, convinced of the cancer danger of cigaret smoking, has filmed at his own expense a 20-minute documentary, "On the Harmfulness of Tobacco." Paul directed and also stars in it. He hopes to get it distributed in theatres all over the world.

From Fernando Lamas: "Arlene and I have made a special pact, never to show baby pictures of Lorenzo." The husky, handsome Latin will be two years old next month, and speaks Spanish almost as well as his father.

Howard Keel owns a piece of "Saratoga." "In New York we call it 'points,'" says Howard, adding "I hope it points in the right direction." Even though the critics were not kind, Howard has a big make a fortune with the advance sale of $1,500,000.

The Duke of Bedford failed to persuade David Niven to portray him on the screen in his life story, "With a Silver-Plated Spoon." The Duke took back to England plans and specifications for the Disneyland-type project he's planning at his ancestral home, Woburn Abbey.

The Economic Key
Rolling Recession Averted Shock

The following article by financial expert Devon Smith ends the series of four pieces dealing with major aspects of the Fabulous Fifties.

By DEVON SMITH

The big economic story of the 1950s was something that didn't happen—a depression. The rolling recession, a series of shifting let-downs in particular businesses, managed to do the corrective work of a depression without bringing the shock to the whole economy that a concerted depression would bring.

This was the economic key to the Fabulous Fifties. And, as the calendar flips and the Fifties give way to the promising Sixties, the rolling recession trundles along, visiting those who ask for it. It'll be keeping things in shape, if we let it!

And there's only one requirement for obtaining the free, perfectly-timed services of the rolling recession; and that's competition.

In the Fabulous Fifties it has visited the forest industries, steel, auto-makers, textiles, copper, uranium, zinc, lead, oil and gas among others.

The vast iron fields of Labrador and Quebec were opened, bringing new ports, railways, shipping routes into being in the past 10 years, though the steel industry had its share of recessionary bumps.

Oil supply swung between over-supply and under-supply and weathered the Suez crisis. But the Canadian fields were swept from a tiny 2,000,000 barrels a month of production to about 15,000,000 barrels today.

And, swamped as it is in unsalable oil, the industry drills on.

The up-and-downs of a recession-haunted decade seems to have done wonders for manufacturing, now Canada's most important kind of industry. Manufacturing production has risen by 42 per cent since 1949, to almost $2,000,000,000 a month.

The number of Canadians with jobs has grown by well over 1,000,000; labor income has sped ahead to around $1,500,000,000 a month from a mere $650,000,000.

The multi-million dollar uranium industry flowered during the Fifties, making new towns, jobs and prospects for thousands. As the decade ticked past it was taking its bumps, but even this industry looks with hope and confidence to the Sixties.

Pipe lines—natural gas and oil—wormed across the country east and west from the swelling prairie supply of petroleum energy.

Oil has already tapped the great U.S. market and the giant Trans-Canada natural gas pipeline is on the verge of cracking that rich market.

The wealth created annually by Canadians at work has doubled during the decade, from $16,500,000,000 to over $33,000,000,000.

The money Canadians have to spend on themselves has also doubled to $22,000,000,000 a year from $11,000,000,000.

Government has increased its share of the spending from a little over $2,000,000,000 to $6,500,000,000.

Investment income—corporate earnings before taxes plus interest, rent and the like—has also more than doubled.

Of course all these great figures are exaggerated a certain amount by the skidding value of the dollar. In 1949 dollars, for example, the total of production in 1959 is likely to be something like $25,000,000,000 instead of the $33,000,000,000 in today's money.

But the booming Fifties still deserve the title of fabulous, having added 50 per cent to our ability to turn out a living for Canadians.

There's only one real cloud shadowing the bright prospect as we soar into the Sixties.

Canadian production costs, like U.S. production costs, are away out of line with those that can be brought to bear in world markets by rebuilt European and Asiatic industry.

This is due primarily to the built-in overhead North Americans have on production. This overhead—big government programs paid for out of direct taxes at the factory and office level—will probably be under control before the Sixties are half gone.

If it is, Canada will go right ahead making this her century. The next few years hold out tremendous promise for bigger and richer markets—in oil, in natural gas, in uranium, in iron, copper, nickel, and agricultural products.

Small increases in per capita consumption of oil and food products in Asia will turn over-abundant Canadian resources into badly needed commodities.

The atomic age, released from government and military restriction, should begin to leap ahead, bringing rising demand for copper, lead and other less glamorous minerals as well as for uranium.

The unlocking of the vast production potential, credit and purchasing power of underdeveloped nations, promises tremendous opportunity for Canadian producers.

And a drive ahead in the Sixties, like that of the Fifties or better, will make a Canada we can now hardly visualize.

Oak Bay 'Drifter' Jailed 18 Months For Burglary, Theft

Sentences on a total of 26 charges of burglary and theft, the offences dating back to March, 1957, were handed down in three municipal courts yesterday to a 17-year-old Oak Bay boy.

David Goddard, 593 Victoria, was sentenced to 18 months definite and eight months indefinite on 25 charges; and to three months definite and three indefinite on the remaining charges. All sentences were made concurrent.

The youth pleaded guilty last week to 13 charges in Saanich police court; five charges in Oak Bay court, and eight in city court. One of those in Saanich was for theft of a pair of oars; one in Victoria for theft of a car. The rest involved break-ins.

Magistrate William Ostler directed that accused be sent to the Young Offenders' Unit of Oakalla, or to a similar rehabilitative institution. Noting that most of the offences occurred while Goddard was on probation from a previous offence, the magistrate said: "You have a long history of

Pastor Takes Over

Rev. Robert D. Holmes takes over his duties today as new pastor of Central Baptist Church.

Mr. Holmes is a graduate of the Central Baptist Seminary in Toronto, where he received his degree as bachelor of theology. Following graduation he became pastor of the Westboro Baptist Church in Ottawa, where he has served for the past eight years.

delinquency and irresponsible conduct. Your life so far has been a pattern of drifting about. You have got to do something about it now.

"It can be said to your credit that you made a clean breast of all these offences to the police and assisted them.

"I hope you may make a good citizen of yourself and learn a useful trade. You will be screened and sent to a place most useful to you."

Pleading guilty to a charge of bookmaking in a downtown cigar store, William John Monteith, 639 Yates, was fined $300 in default one month. It was his first offence.

Police said they found paraphernalia for recording bets at the accused's shop at 578 Yates.

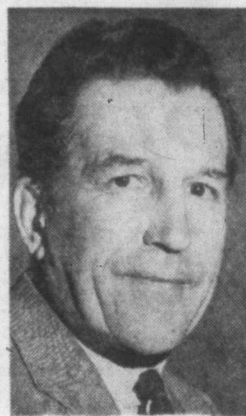

"I can't afford to pay the fine," accused told Magistrate Ostler. "I haven't got that kind of money."

"Do you wish time to pay the fine? That could be arranged," the magistrate said. "Accused shook his head. 'I wouldn't be able to pay it,' he said."

Andrew Westwick, 2831 Gosworth, was fined $250 in the same court when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving on Christmas Eve. He was remanded to Jan. 7 for a probation report for disposition of his driver's licence.

Appearing in Colwood police court yesterday, Walter Ruffell, 945 Orono, pleaded guilty to a charge of assaulting his wife on Dec. 18, and to another of pointing a rifle at a neighbor. He was remanded to Jan. 6 for probation report and sentence.

Also in Colwood court, Lawrence Cardinal, 1660 Island Highway, pleaded guilty to theft of some steaks from the Foodliner in Colwood. He was fined $50.

Scores Attend Perry Funeral

The man who was often credited with sparking the construction to Prince George of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway was buried at Royal Oak Burial Park yesterday.

High ranking Liberals, politicians from other parties and scores of friends gathered at Christ Church Cathedral to pay their last respects to Harry G. T. Perry, a well-known Liberal and former Speaker of the House and provincial minister of education.

Honorary pallbearers included Attorney-General Robert Bonner, representing Premier Bennett, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant, Education Minister Leslie Peterson, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, Sen. J. G. Turgeson, George Murray, Tom Uphill, Archie Gibbs and Liberal leader Ray Perrault.

Son Sends Recording

Voice on Tape Soothes Mother at Airport

VANCOUVER (CP)—An 80-year-old Chinese woman listened to her son's voice for the first time in 10 years Wednesday night and replied excitedly to the tape recorder which carried her son's words.

Mrs. Li Choy Yee Wong, an elf-like figure in black, had arrived in Vancouver en route to Washington, D.C., to live with her son, Rev. Victor Wong, 39, a Roman Catholic priest.

To make sure his mother wasn't frightened after her first plane ride and to soothe her before she transferred to another flight, Father Wong sent a five-minute tape recording in Chinese.

Escorted into a room at the airport reserved for important passengers making a stop-over, Mrs. Wong listened with growing excitement as her son's voice said: "Welcome to Vancouver. Rev. Chow is here to take care of you and welcome you."

The message referred to Rev. Peter Chow, rector of the Chinese Catholic Centre here and a classmate of Father Wong's from 1937 to 1942 at the seminary in Hong Kong.

She told the recorder that she didn't need her airsickness pills, and that she had eaten well on the plane from Hong Kong, including "some good rich soup."

Fluoridation Study Ends

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal scientists have completed the basic work in an 11-year study of the effects of fluoridated water on children's teeth, concluding that fluoridation undoubtedly brings marked reductions in tooth decay.

The study, begun in 1948 and involving more than 50,000 dental examinations of children in Brantford and Sarnia, now presents a complete picture of fluoridation effects.

Sea Attack

Piracy
Angers
Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union charged Wednesday night that a South Korean warship fired on an unarmed Russian ship off North Korea, seriously damaging her and inflicting casualties among the crew.

(South Korea denied the attack.)

Calling the attack an act of piracy on the high seas, Tass news agency, in an authorized statement, threatened the destruction of any ships engaging in similar attacks in the future.

Tass said the Soviet hydrographic vessel Ungo was fired upon Dec. 28 at a point about 30 miles off North Korea and 36 miles north of the South Korean boundary.

The attacker, the agency said, was a South Korean warship of the "big hunter type, No. 205."

Presumably this was a former U.S. navy submarine chaser of 251 tons displacement carrying one 40-mm. and two 20-mm. guns, turned over to the South Koreans, Janes, authoritative manual on navies, lists No. 205 in the Korean navy as such a ship.

Tass said the warship turned after firing its shots and sailed toward South Korean waters, accompanied by two similar warships which remained at a distance.

The Soviet ship was operating in waters not far from the course used in repatriating Koreans from Japan to North Korea. Two Soviet ships are being used to ferry the repatriates. South Korea has threatened to use force if necessary to prevent the migration.

Police Raid
Vancouver
Blind Pigs

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police raided five speakeasies early Wednesday following Police Chief George Archer's disclosure to city council the night before that police are aware of 84 illegal drinking establishments, known as "blind pigs."

Police said one house with a shabby exterior, had luxurious interior, including a huge bar room featuring a 10-foot bar covered with cowhide and one elaborate table concealing 14 bottles of liquor.

'You Just Killed
My Eyes'

FREDERICKTOWN, Mo. (AP) — A Fredericktown man was held in jail yesterday for the shotgun slaying of a blind man's guide dog. The dog's owner told the man, "You just killed my eyes."

The dog was Janie, German shepherd owned by John J. Hess, Jr., 32, of St. Louis.

Everett Stacy, 42, said he shot because he thought Janie was going to spring at him.

Tossing his hat into ring for 1960 Democratic presidential nomination is Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minn., who will be the candidate of "the plain people." Sen. Humphrey said that if nominated he could defeat Republican Richard M. Nixon.

Return Bonus Cards
Court Orders Police

VANCOUVER (CP) — Magistrate James Bartman Wednesday ordered the Crown to return 20,000 bonus cards seized from grocery stores of Shop Easy Stores here unless the prosecutor can prove he needs them.

The cards were seized by detectives in a raid on Shop Easy stores in Vancouver about two weeks ago in an investigation to see if they contravene the Criminal Code of Canada. The cards give customers a chance at cash prizes.

Britain, France Happy

Summit Now Definite

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain is "very pleased" Russia has accepted May 16 for the start of an East-West summit conference, a foreign office spokesman said Wednesday night.

Sir Patrick Reilly, British ambassador in Moscow, received the brief acceptance note from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and forwarded it immediately to London.

British officials said the May meeting in Paris is intended by the West to be the first of a series. In letters to Russia eight days ago, the three Western powers suggested summit talks could rotate in turn among the four capitals.

In Paris, French government officials welcomed the news of Russia's acceptance of the Western-proposed date. They said from the start France believed time must be allowed for thorough preparation of the summit talks.

REPLY IMMEDIATE
Premier Nikita Khrushchev's acceptance came only a day after the May 16 date was proposed in personal letters from President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Macmillan and President de Gaulle.

It will be the first East-West summit conference since the four powers met in Geneva in July, 1955. Of the four men, Eisenhower is the only one who attended as head of government.

Macmillan and Khrushchev attended in other capacities with their prime ministers, Sir Anthony Eden and Nikolai Bulganin. It will be de Gaulle's first summit conference.

Scientists Demand All-Out Fight

'Control Births
To Save World'

SIR JULIAN HUXLEY

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two noted scientists called yesterday for all-out use of every practical method of birth control to save the world from political and social catastrophe.

The demand was contained in a statement issued by Dr. Philip M. Hauser, University of Chicago sociologist. British biologist Sir Julian Huxley forwarded "general" agreement with the statement from England and added to it.

INCONSISTENT
Hauser said United States refusal to back birth control would be inconsistent with this nation's participation in the United Nations health program and American medical efforts towards "death control."

Hauser and Huxley also attacked Pope John's Dec. 14 pronouncement against birth control and President Eisenhower's opposition to offering birth control information to other nations.

INSUFFICIENT
While birth control methods acceptable to the Catholic Church "can and do" control population to a limited extent, Hauser said, they will not suffice in the face of the world's current population "explosion."

A basic problem for immediate generations is not space and feeding, Hauser said, so much as raising living standards in under-developed countries in order to meet the threat of Communism.

ERRONEOUS
"To the extent that the population facts are ignored, the Roman Catholic church is assuming a position in respect to demography (population statistics study) now like the admittedly erroneous positions it originally took (toward) Copernican cosmology and Darwinian evolution," Hauser said.

Hauser said Pope John had attached labels of "pernicious and death dealing" to birth control methods "completely compatible with moral values of other Christian as well as non-Christian value systems."

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Canada is clearly opposed to any further nuclear tests, External Affairs Minister Howard Green said here Wednesday.

Mr. Green made the statement during a brief stopover at Windsor airport on his way to Vancouver and his home riding of Vancouver-Quadra.

AGAINST TESTS
Asked for his opinion regarding President Eisenhower's announcement Tuesday that the U.S. will not extend its moratorium on nuclear tests, Mr. Green replied, "We are against nuclear tests of any kind, and our position has been made clear on this point."

SERIOUS MISTAKES
In Regina CCF House leader Hazen Argue said:
"The CCF party believes any decision by the United States to resume nuclear tests is a serious mistake."
"Far from strengthening the Western position at the summit conference it has weakened it."

'Admit 2,500' — Coldwell

Refugee Flow
'Mere Token'

OTTAWA (CP) — The CCF party Wednesday called on the federal government to admit 2,500 tubercular European refugees and their families in the next six months.

National leader M. J. Coldwell said that the current admission of 100 patients and their families from Europe is "no more than a token, a gesture."

He said the number of beds available in Canadian sanatoria now is around 2,700.

"For us to leave these beds empty any longer while thousands of European refugees continue their dismal wait in camps set up 15 years ago is a sin against humanity," Mr. Coldwell said in a statement in connection with the current World Refugee Year.

For the proposed 2,500, he said it would be the federal government's responsibility to make all the necessary arrangements with the provinces, including the payment of all costs.

"The government," he added, "must also give its utmost moral and financial support to those agencies of the United Nations trying to solve the still more difficult problem of the refugees of, for example, the Middle East and Hong Kong."

Vanier:

'Open
Your Arms'

OTTAWA (CP) — Maj. Gen. George Vanier, in his first New Year's message as governor-general, yesterday made a special plea to Canadians to welcome with open arms persons who come from foreign lands to seek a new life in Canada.

Through a warm welcome for newcomers, Canadians would strengthen the bonds of unity under the crown and continue the apostleship of the Queen who had endeared herself to many new Canadians during her visit last summer.

City Police Court Collects
$151,000 in Fines in '59Dog's Heart
Transplanted

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Norman Shumway and Dr. Richard Lower have successfully transplanted a living heart from one dog to another.

The mongrel male dog was still alive a week after the operation.

Business continued to expand in Victoria's police court during 1959, as more than 8,000 "customers" paid in more than $151,000 — more than $5,000 above the total for 1958.

The total includes fines paid into court by all types of offenders during the year, those prepaid in the traffic office as well as those paid in court.

Actually, just over 8,000 individuals paid their fines in the court as a result of summons.

DAY IN, DAY OUT

Those who paid their fines in the traffic office (and the vast majority were parking violations) averaged about 190 individuals a day, six days a week, all year.

Only one month in 1959 showed fines totalling less than $10,000. "Returns" for August were only $9,821.

For other months, receipts were: January, $13,185; February, $12,287; March, $12,354; April, $13,394; May, $13,183; June, $13,972; July, $11,080; September, $13,467; October, $11,953; November, $13,470.

December receipts including Dec. 30 were $13,378 — and another $300 to $400 would probably be added for the last day of the year.

Total number of courtroom contributors in 1958 was 7,601, and the receipts for that year were $145,816.

All money from fines goes into the city's general revenue. It is not earmarked for the police court or the department.

Men With
No Axes
To Grind

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The world's best technical experts will be brought in to study the feasibility report on the engineering and economics of hydro development in the Peace River, B.C., water controller Arthur F. Paget said last night.

STAKING REPUTATIONS

"They will be people who have no axe to grind in British Columbia and their professional reputations will be staked on their decisions," Mr. Paget said.

FOUR COPIES

Peace River Power Development Company president W. C. Mainwaring delivered to Mr. Paget yesterday four copies of the nine-volume report prepared by his company after $5,000,000 worth of studies in the Rocky Mountain Trench area.

REPORT SECRET

Mr. Mainwaring said the report is secret and all other copies have been locked away in a vault until the water controller has completed his study and made his recommendations.

$611,000,000

The report details plans for a $611,000,000 development to produce 4,000,000 horsepower on the Peace River.

"Mr. Paget says it deals only with hydro development and has nothing to do with a proposed railway or a uranium enrichment plant. Those do not come under my department," he said.

MARCH DEADLINE

Mr. Paget has until March 31 to make a report on the development plan.

"I am going into deep thought for about three months," he said. He added his own department experts and others who will be brought in will study the plan. One world-renowned consultant, D. J. Bliffuss, is already working on the Peace studies with the water rights branch.

SOUND REPORT

"We are going to produce a basically very sound report," Mr. Paget said.

"There will be no public hearings during these studies," Mr. Paget declared.

Mr. Paget said he will make a report to the government. "That report might be construed as approval or disapproval," he said.

PUC NEXT

After Mr. Paget makes his report... and if it is favorable to the Peace development... the Peace River Power Development Company will have to apply to the Public Utilities Commission for a certificate of convenience and necessity.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

That is when public hearings on the plan will be held.

"A decision on a water rights licence must wait until the PUC gives its approval to the scheme," Mr. Paget said, "and it would be contingent upon the company receiving PUC approval."

Just Eight Deaths Away
From All-Time Record

British Columbia last night stood only eight deaths away from equalling the all-time traffic fatality record of 316, set in 1956.

With 308 traffic deaths recorded up until yesterday, motor vehicles branch officials appealed to motorists to drive carefully and sensibly over the New Year's holiday.

Besides the fatalities there have been more than 7,000 persons injured this year, some of them maimed for life.

Kyuquot Knew Joy, Tragedy

KYUQUOT — This west coast fishing community has enjoyed a pleasant year with few accidents and no serious boat losses.

Most serious fire of the year was when the Canadian Fishing Company store burned completely early in February in what is believed the most serious fire in Kyuquot's history.

May, 1959, Martin Bartlett, Craig Aspinall and Ralph Deans, all of Vancouver, called at Kyuquot in their 18-foot converted lifeboat Amariyllis in which they rounded Vancouver Island.

Early in June, Kyuquot schoolgirl Donna Trondsen was crowned May Queen.

From July 26 to Aug. 8 a strike in the fishing industry filled Kyuquot's harbor with salmon trollers. Feelings ran high as fishermen claimed to have "no vote or part in the strike" yet were unable to sell their fish. Out of this came the Kyuquot Committee, a group of fishermen and their wives who demanded that the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union be investigated.

From Oct. 4 to Oct. 15 about 40 large seiners crowded into Kyuquot to reap the largest chum salmon catch taken in this area. Local boats, however, had their poorest year, the fish being caught by large boats from northern and straits areas, equipped with more efficient gear.

On Oct. 7, Kyuquot pioneer Sidney L. Neave died.

In October and November many residents went to winter homes in Vancouver and Victoria leaving Kyuquot with the smallest population of any time in the past 10 years.

Life One Long Walk

Near-Sighted Old Lady Continually on the Go

Josephine Keeps Going

She can't run up hills like a certain Victoria man, but tiny Josephine Charlie, widow of a Cowichan chief, can sure travel on the flat. (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson.)

DUNCAN—Some Indians call her "Chickadee," but to the non-Indian community she is called "The Walker."

Tiny Josephine Charlie, born in 1880, can't see 20 feet in front of her and yet thin as nothing of walking five miles to visit a friend.

There are older persons here, but few of Josephine's age who can match her when it comes to walking.

"I have been walking all ways," she says. Her legs carried her into the home of Tsu-Tsan—now referred to as Red Cap—where she lived for almost a year in 1895. At one time Red Cap was the most influential Indian in the district and it is said chiefs always discussed their plans with him. His Big House was on the Genoa Bay Road where Camp Imadene is today.

"Chickadee" was born at Chemainus Bay and was one of the first pupils when the Catholic Residential School opened at Kuper Island.

She was a beauty who married Moses Charlie, who became a chief of the Cowichan people.

"She's a grand old lady," said Indian police constable Adam Jimmy, one of her distant cousins. He said the people watch out for her.

Josephine takes care of herself in her home on the Quamichan part of the Cowichan Reserve, two miles west of here. During the summer, at least twice a week, she walks into town and then, most times, several miles out of her way to visit.

Six years ago she was knocked down by a car, but she still walks. Oldtimers shake their heads as she shuffles by, carrying her cane and a bag she clutches to her bright, multi-colored clothing.

Won't Budge

Ambulance Delayed By Drivers

DUNCAN—Ambulance drivers here have appealed to motorists for co-operation in clearing the highway when the ambulance is racing to or from an accident.

"Unless they do someone is going to get hurt... and I don't want it to be a driver," said George Sinden, Kiwanis Ambulance Society director.

He said last night if co-operation doesn't improve, drivers might take licence numbers of offending vehicles to report to police.

"At Christmas only about 25 per cent of the public got out of the way," when the ambulance went to a collision and took a woman to hospital, Mr. Sinden said.

He warned that when the ambulance is using its flashing red light and siren, the motoring public is required by law to get off the travelled portion of the road and stop.

Drivers here, at Victoria and Vancouver get off the road for ambulances when they are in the city, but seem to forget they must stop on the highway too, he said.

Heroism, Tragedy of Sea Highlighted Fulford's Year

FULFORD HARBOR—Here is a report of some of the more important events of 1959.

Jan. 26—Two Vancouver men, Ollie Vea and Leo Hansen rescued from the 42-foot trawler Karsmund, which capsized and sank in 33 fathoms of water just off Isabella Point. Ten tons of herring proved too much for Karsmund and she pitched the fishermen into the water. The fisheries patrol boat Atlin Post rescued the two men.

Feb. 19—Captain Edward Lacy and crew of Mv. Cy Peck bravely rescued E. Hansen, lone survivor of the tragic sinking of tugboat Henry Foss just off Beaver Point at 4 a.m. in a howling storm. Seven of the eight-man crew drowned. Capt. Lacy radioed the RCAF's rescue centre in Vancouver, giving the first report of the tragedy.

March—Postal mystery of the year—A card posted in Winnipeg on Aug. 11, 1953, with postmark "Avoid Delay" across it, arrived at its destination in Fulford just 5½ years late.

March—Gulf Islands Ferry Co. (1951) Ltd. announced the purchase of an extra ferry, Mv. Delta Princess, to add to the fleet of ferries already serving the islands.

April 19—Captain G. McRae of tug Kansas, and John Higgins, owner of derrick-scow, salvaged the sunken hull of the trawler, Karsmund, after the vessel had lain in some 62 fathoms of water just off Isabella Point for three months. It took three days to raise the hull, a feat considered to be one of the outstanding marine efforts by shipping men on the coast.

May, May Day was celebrated at Fulford with Queen Joan Warburton of Ganges, and Princess Leona Roland of Isabella Point, and Gladys Patterson of Fulford. Page boy was Douglas Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart of Beaver Point.

July, Hobby Show at Beaver sponsored by Miss Gwen Ruckle and community.

Hon. Earle Westwood visited the exhibition.

Aug. 15, First chicken barbecue fed 500 guests at Fulford Hall. Now established as annual affair. Rand Young and Dave Slingsby were chefs.

Aug. 21, W. Y. Stewart of Beaver Point escaped serious injury with friend, C. J. Brews, as they took the wrong turning, drove over a steep bank at Ganges and dropped to rocks 30 feet below.

Aug. 26, A farewell party at Fulford Hall surprised Mr. and Mrs. F. Reid, who left the island after living here for 50 years. They are now living in Victoria.

Oct. 28—Stewart Brown, age 79, was dunked in the cold waters of Fulford Harbor when canoe tipped over after he fired a shot at a duck—missed the duck but got a duckling. In the water 40 minutes, he was rescued by Tim O'Donnell and Quentin Wilson.

November—A site for a public picnic park was donated by Walter Few. This will be on waterfront at Fulford.

November—Soviet Union officials visited Mr. and Mrs. A. Stevens at Beaver Point.

Nov. 26—Fulford art on exhibition in the Art Gallery in Victoria. Miss G. Ruckle, Mrs. F. Grant, Dick Hamilton and Miss Sheila Reynolds each had a picture in the exhibition.

Dec. 18—New Fulford bridge completed. Frank Grant of Isabella Point Road, first to drive car over new bridge.

December, First highland cattle brought to island by R. Akerman. Eight head of shaggy hair and long horns, from Fraser Valley farm.

Dec. 11—Sharp earth tremors felt at Fulford.

Dec. 25—Christmas Day bright and sunny. Christmas chimes and music broadcast by A. D. Dane, chief engineer on Mv. Motor Princess. A kingfisher danced in time to music on telephone wires.

Dec. 28—Police report no accidents over Christmas on Salt Spring Island.

Pensioners' Group Meets Tuesday

The monthly meeting of Victoria Aged Pensioners' Association No. 3 will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Canadian Legion Hall on Blanshard Street.

Members will be guests of the Cedar Hill golf course on Fridays during January.

Bird banding was first practised in North America by John James Audubon in 1804 near Philadelphia.

Ganges Tasted Good, Bad Times

GANGES—The past year at Ganges had its high points and its low points. Some of the more noteworthy happenings were:

Amid falling snowflakes, new champions were crowned at the second annual running of the Pancake Derby, held on Shrove Tuesday, sponsored by the Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary. Pancake racing was introduced to Salt Spring Island by Mrs. Ivor Williams.

John Rhodes Sturdy, a local author had three stories appearing simultaneously in major magazines—"Moment of Anger" appeared in the Feb. 14 issue of Saturday Evening Post; "Stoker Mahoney and Pill No. 2183" in the Feb. 14 issue of Maclean's Magazine, and "Keeper of the Hulk" in the February issue of Argosy.

A fully loaded gasoline truck caught fire June 6, and burned fiercely in the heart of the business section for more than an hour. Credit for averting a major explosion was given to volunteer firemen who fought the blaze and to Francis Barnes and L. G. Kelly who drove the blazing truck to a comparatively safe place, where the flames were finally extinguished by fire hoses.

Blue shale of special quality will be produced on Salt Spring Island. Donald R. Morrison, general manager of Alsam Manufacturing Ltd. (B.C.) disclosed July 9 that a $300,000 plant will be built at the head of Wellbury Bay, near the entrance to Ganges Harbor.

The police boat RCMP Sidney, M.P. 53, stationed at

No ill effects were suffered by Edward Rosman, 86, of Victoria, as the result of a night spent in the woods of north Salt Spring Island in September. He was found by an RCMP tracking dog.

A link with the past was severed with the death Sept. 28, in Lady Minto Hospital, of William Allen McAfee. The late Mr. McAfee, a resident of Ganges since 1902, was Salt Spring Island's blacksmith.

Three Salt Spring Island men—school trustee George Heinekey, board secretary C. N. Peterson and skipper Harry Eitel returned home Nov. 6 after a harrowing experience in Active Pass the previous night while en route from Mayne to Galliano to attend annual school board meeting. Their boat was fouled in the tow line of a tug. They jumped to the barge seconds before their boat capsized.

The volunteer fire brigade resigned as a body in October because public support was insufficient to buy essential equipment.

Fire of undetermined origin totally destroyed the club house of the Salt Spring Island Golf Club Nov. 20.

In December Salt Spring Island, exclusive of Beaver Point and inaccessible areas, was declared a fire protection district.

Don't Throw Toys Away

DUNCAN—Parents wanting to get rid of children's presents to make room for those received this Christmas, may donate them to the Cowichan Christmas Cheer Fund.

Instead of throwing them away, the toys could be donated and then fixed by district Scouts in time for next year, said George Sinden, treasurer of the committee, yesterday.

Toys may be left at the Colonist office, 30 Kenneth Street.

Saanich Prepares for Population Explosion

By TERRY HAMMOND

By the end of the new decade which opens on Friday Saanich will be "the finest residential municipality in British Columbia," Reeve George Chatterton said yesterday.

"We have an almost limitless future."

"We are now the fastest growing municipality in the Greater Victoria area and with the tremendous expansion of population which is taking place we must see ourselves as a predominantly residential community for many years to come.

"Our greatest problem will be the supply of services to the new areas without placing undue strain on the services or the property owners of the older areas.

"To face this problem we must have not only community planning, but long-term financial planning," he said.

He said he will ask the 1960 council to take positive steps toward long-term financial planning.

Council will also be asked by the reeve to give top priority to choosing and acquiring a 10 to 15-acre site for a future municipal hall and combination police-fire building.

He predicted that sod would be turned before the end of 1960 for the latter and estimated its cost at approximately $200,000.

Council has already endorsed the principle of housing both services in the same building, he pointed out.

He will ask for similar endorsement of a plan whereby the site for a new municipal hall would be combined with the public protection building site.

"I don't want anything negatively about the site," the reeve continued, "I would like to see a real civic centre there some day."

Under the terms of sale of the municipal yard and fire-hall site on Douglas Street to Dominion Construction Ltd. as a shopping centre location,

Saanich must vacate the main fire station by the end of 1961. Another major project in 1960, the reeve went on, is to persuade the provincial government to accept Quadra Street as a secondary highway. If this is accomplished the major thoroughfare should be completely reconstructed by the end of 1960, he stated.

Doctor Warns Uphill Racers Of Heart Risk

Don't run uphill unless you have been running up hills all your life and are in tip-top physical shape, regardless of your age, a prominent Victoria heart specialist warned yesterday.

His statement came in the wake of a public challenge by doughty, 82-year-old Saanich resident John Herbert Gray, who entered up Little Saanich Hill in 18 minutes flat Tuesday and then repeated the feat for TV cameramen yesterday.

MANY WILLING

A number of acceptances were forwarded to the Colonist yesterday, one of them from a former Olympic sprinter and onetime Canadian senior track champion.

But the heart specialist was quick to throw cold water on the plans of aspiring contestants.

DON'T START NOW

He said nobody should run uphill who has not kept himself fit all his life and who hasn't made a daily practice of running uphill.

"A regular uphill walk is a wonderful thing," the specialist said, "but racing is an entirely different matter."

"Racing introduces the element of stress and stress is what affects the heart."

WITH IMPUNITY

He said octogenarian hill-runner Gray was in remarkable physical condition for his age and could jaunt up Little Saanich Mountain with relative impunity.

But he stressed that even for the extremely healthy, a

A woman walking along Oak Bay Avenue last night was attacked from behind and thrown to the sidewalk by a burly young man who made off with her purse containing about 75 cents.

It was the fourth time this month that a purse snatcher has attacked women walking alone after dark in a six-block radius south of Royal Jubilee Hospital.

NO ARRESTS

Police have searched the area after each crime was committed, but no arrest has been made and police say there is little they can do in the maze of dark streets until someone comes up with a better description.

ON WAY HOME

Last night's victim, 29-year-old Brenda Taylor, 2324 McNeill, was on her way home from work off a school board office in Craigdarroch Castle when attacked in the 1600 block of Oak Bay Avenue.

"I sensed something," she said. "I don't know why."

KEPT SILENT

"I heard these padding footsteps behind me and I turned around. I was taken by surprise. He didn't say anything."

The man cupped his hand over her mouth and threw her to the sidewalk, grabbed her purse and ran between two nearby homes, Miss Taylor said.

PURSE FOUND

Oak Bay police later found the "viciously torn" purse in the 1000 block McGregor Avenue, about a block away.

Police were told that it had contained only about 75 cents. The thief "was very disappointed with me" Miss Taylor said later.

KEEP EYES OPEN

"People have to walk along those streets," said deputy chief Harry Mercer of the Victoria police department. "They should keep their eyes open to see who's around and make an effort to give police a better description of the man."

IF IT RECURS...

"We hope it won't happen again," he said, "but, if it does, the more we can get on it the quicker we'll get him."

On Dec. 23, 69-year-old Mrs. Mabel Sampson, 1729 Oak Bay, suffered a bruised hip when she fell while fighting off a purse snatcher on Oak Bay between Feil and Chamberlain.

$83 STOLEN

The night before that, a purse containing about $18 was taken from Mrs. Barbara Scott, 45, 1407 Fort, in the 1600 block Fort.

On Dec. 4, a purse containing $65 was taken from Grace Chamberlain, 21, 222 St. Charles, in the 1000 block Richmond.

Liquor Stores Closing Early

All B.C. liquor stores close at 6 p.m. today, so if anyone still needs to stock up on New Year's liquor he had better do so early today.

Cabarets will close at 2 a.m. as usual and all other outlets including cocktail bars and beer parlors will close at 11:30 as usual on New Year's Eve, which is tonight.

They'll Be Working While Others Play

These five essential-service workers will be among dozens who work tonight while Victoria is at play heralding the New Year. Also on the job will be radio and television employees, newspapermen, hotel employees, bus drivers, armed services personnel, night watchmen, doctors, theatre employees, ambulance crews, wrecking truck drivers, ships' crews, airport workers, railroaders, service station staffs and others. Many will not even notice the stroke of midnight go by or hear the sounds of revelry which traditionally split the quiet of the night.—(Colonist photos.)

New City Parking Lot To Open in January

New city parking lot where the public market and firehall used to stand probably will open in two or three weeks and "certainly will open sometime in January," City Engineer James Gardlett said yesterday.

No Jobs Until Fall

Outlook Bleak For City Yards

Spokesmen for Victoria shipyards yesterday issued the bleakest New Year forecast in the history of the industry.

The industry has never faced a less promising outlook than that which looms for 1960, said Yarrows Ltd. general manager John A. Wallace.

Harold Husband, president of Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd., said that on the basis of the present outlook his firm's payroll, which has averaged 600 through 1959, will be cut to 250 or 300 by March or April.

He said that the company at present has no work lined up until next fall for its large outfitting crew after outfitting of the provincial government ferry Mv. Sidney is complete in about three months.

Water Board Chief, 76 Scampers Into Sewer

NANAIMO — John Barsby, 76-year-old water board and sewer commission chairman, descended over 20 feet down a steep vertical ladder with the agility of a 10-year-old yesterday.

Mr. Barsby was one of a group of civic officials, including Mayor Pete Maffeo, who toured the city's $2,450,000 sewer project.

The project was started earlier this year and is scheduled for completion in mid-1961. Progress is ahead of schedule, however, and it may be finished by the end of 1960 or early 1961.

Mr. Barsby and the civic party descended into the pump room of the largest sewer pumping station in Canada.

The pumping station, on Brechin Point, will force the sewage out 1,000 feet past Newcastle Island, thus preventing any further contamination of Nanaimo Harbor.

The system is designed for about 40,000 users. Connections next year will total only 19,000 or so and peak capacity will not be reached within 20 years.

CAMPBELL RIVER — A two-car head-on collision Tuesday night on the Island Highway near Campbellton sent two men to Campbell River General Hospital.

Armand De Roche received only minor cuts and abrasions when his northbound car skidded on the icy road and hit the southbound vehicle driven by Frank Power.

Mr. Power is in hospital with a fractured left leg. There were no other passengers in either car.

DUNCAN — Most side roads were covered with ice-like sheets of glass yesterday morning, yet the only accident was on the Trans-Canada Highway where the pavement was only wet.

Four passengers escaped injury in a near head-on collision nine miles south of Duncan at 9 a.m. The crash caused extensive damage to both cars.

Police said Jaeger S. Judge, 1703 Burnside, Victoria, was proceeding north and passing a truck when his car collided with one being driven by Dr. Ralph MacDonald, Duncan optometrist, who was driving south.

NANAIMO — Mrs. Bessie Reifel, a well-known Nanaimo resident, died Tuesday. Mrs. Reifel had lived in the hub city for 65 years. She was 77.

Funeral services will be held in the Westwood Chapel of Flowers at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

DUNCAN — Snow that fell to a depth of two inches on mountains west of here yesterday has not caused any layoffs in the logging industry.

"The companies intend to work through snow, as long as it is possible," said Harold Whitfield, National Employment Service supervisor, yesterday.

Companies have indicated to him that "due to market conditions and a desire to maintain log inventories, most loggers have indicated their intention of maintaining production throughout the winter."

MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd. at Copper Canyon were among several firms which used salt on roads to get rid of snow.

DUNCAN — Both Cowichan school districts are waiting for notification on whether or not arbitration boards have reached decisions on teacher salaries.

Col. G. C. Boyd said last night nothing had been received from their three-man board which sat at Victoria Monday for school district No. 67 (Lake Cowichan).

Word will definitely not be released through the office here of school district 65 (Cowichan) until late Monday, said school board secretary G. F. Dyson. He said the office will be closed today.

Both arbitration boards have until midnight tonight to come to a decision.

NANAIMO — Housing construction in Nanaimo during 1959 was well down—78 houses this year compared to 102 in 1958.

An increase in value of commercial permits—$1,166,000 this year and $693,000 in 1958—was offset by a decrease in permits for public buildings—$86,000 in 1959 and $412,000 in 1958.

The over-all total for this year was slightly lower than last. City inspector Ben Boers said permits valued at $2,241,000 were issued from city hall this year. Last year, the grand total was $2,300,200.

TOFINO — A $28,912 contract for wharf repairs at Ucluelet West has been awarded to Tom Gibson Contracting of Tofino.

The federal department of public works announced yesterday.

Work consists of removing and reconstructing about 7,950 square feet of wharfhead, and is scheduled for completion in four months.

QUALICUM BEACH

Teachers in school district 69 (Qualicum) will receive a 5.23 per cent salary increase in 1960, following arbitration board findings.

The teachers had applied for a 9.5 per cent raise.

The raise in salary will bring individual teachers between $20 to $50 per month increases, scaled in regard to years of training and experience.

The staff payroll will be increased basically by $13,150.

Last year, the total for teachers' salaries was $254,475.50 including increments. The awards handed down by the arbitration board, and binding on both parties in the dispute, range from $2,800 minimum per year for elementary school teachers to a maximum of $7,860 per year for teachers in the secondary-advanced category.

A request for an increase in salary ratings for school principals was refused by the board.

Representing the Mt. Arrowsmith Teachers' Association was D. A. Hobbs, Vancouver, as arbitrator, and Stanley Evans, Vancouver, as advocate. District No. 69 (Qualicum) Board of School Trustees was represented by William R. McIntyre of Victoria as arbitrator, and K. C. Murphy, Victoria lawyer as advocate.

CAMPBELL RIVER — Funeral services for Hjalmar E. Christianson, First World War veteran, were held here yesterday.

Mr. Christianson, who died Christmas Eve, was buried in Campbell River Cemetery. Members of the Canadian Legion acted as pallbearers.

NANAIMO — Prompt payment of parking fines will save motorists $1.50 per ticket after Jan. 7.

Parking meter violators will be assessed $3.50 but will receive $1.50 back if they pay their fines at city hall within three days of the offence.

TOFINO — More than $1,100 was recently donated to Tofino General Hospital by West Coast residents and business firms for purchase of equipment, hospital officials said yesterday.

COURTENAY — Students in District 71 schools will have a half-holiday Sept. 16 to let them visit the annual Comox Valley fall fair.

The fair will be held Sept. 16 and 17, two weeks later than in previous years.

Sea Attack Piracy Angers Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union charged Wednesday night that a South Korean warship fired on an unarmed Russian ship off North Korea, seriously damaging her and inflicting casualties among the crew. (South Korea denied the attack.)

Calling the attack an act of piracy on the high seas, Tass news agency, in an authorized statement, threatened the destruction of any ships engaging in similar attacks in the future.

Tass said the Soviet hydrographic vessel Ungo was fired upon Dec. 28 at a point about 30 miles off North Korea and 36 miles north of the South Korean boundary.

The attacker, the agency said, was a South Korean warship of the "big hunter type, No. 205."

Presumably, this was a former U.S. navy submarine chaser of 251 tons displacement carrying one 40-mm. and two 20-mm. guns, turned over to the South Koreans, James, authoritative manual on navies, lists No. 205 in the Korean navy as such a ship.

Tass said the warship turned after firing its shots and sailed toward South Korean waters, accompanied by two similar warships which remained at a distance.

The Soviet ship was operating in waters not far from the course used in repatriating Koreans from Japan to North Korea. Two Soviet ships are being used to ferry the repatriates. South Korea has threatened to use force if necessary to prevent the migration.

Police Raid Vancouver 'Blind Pigs'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police raided five speakeasies early Wednesday following Police Chief George Archer's disclosure to city council the night before that police are aware of 84 illegal drinking establishments, known as "blind pigs."

Police said one house with a shabby exterior had luxurious interior, including a huge bar room featuring a 10-foot bar covered with cowhide and one elaborate table concealing 14 bottles of liquor.

'You Just Killed My Eyes'

FREDERICKTOWN, Mo. (AP) — A Fredericktown man was held in jail yesterday for the shotgun slaying of a blind man's guide dog. The dog's owner told the man, "You just killed my eyes."

The dog was Janie, German shepherd owned by John J. Hess, Jr., 32, of St. Louis.

Everett Stacy, 42, said he shot because he thought Janie was going to spring at him.

Return Bonus Cards Court Orders Police

VANCOUVER (CP)—Magistrate James Bartman Wednesday ordered the Crown to return 20,000 bonus cards seized from grocery stores of Shop Easy Stores here unless the prosecutor can prove he needs them.

The cards were seized by detectives in a raid on Shop Easy stores in Vancouver about two weeks ago in an investigation to see if they contravened the Criminal Code of Canada. The cards give customers a chance at cash prizes.

Britain, France Happy

Summit Now Definite

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain is "very pleased" Russia has accepted May 16 for the start of an East-West summit conference, a foreign office spokesman said Wednesday night.

Sir Patrick Reilly, British ambassador in Moscow, received the brief acceptance note from Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko and forwarded it immediately to London.

FIRST OF SERIES

British officials said the May meeting in Paris is intended by the West to be the first of a series. In letters to Russia eight days ago, the three Western powers suggested summit talks could rotate in turn among the four capitals.

In Paris, French government officials welcomed the news of Russia's acceptance of the Western-proposed date. They said from the start France believed time must be allowed for thorough preparation of the summit talks.

REPLY IMMEDIATE

Premier Nikita Khrushchev's acceptance came only a day after the May 16 date was proposed in personal letters from President Eisenhower, Prime Minister Macmillan and President de Gaulle.

It will be the first East-West summit conference since the four powers met in Geneva in July, 1955. Of the four men, Eisenhower is the only one who attended as head of government.

Macmillan and Khrushchev attended in other capacities with their prime ministers, Sir Anthony Eden and Nikolai Bulganin. It will be de Gaulle's first summit conference.

Arms Burden Relief Sought by Macmillan

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan said in a New Year's message published yesterday that the world must "seek relief from the heavy burden of arms."

Canada Opposes Any Atom Tests

Hat in Ring

Tossing his hat into ring for 1960 Democratic presidential nomination is Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who will be the candidate of "the plain people." Sen. Humphrey said that if nominated he could defeat Republican Richard M. Nixon.

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Canada is clearly opposed to any further nuclear tests, External Affairs Minister Howard Green said here Wednesday.

Mr. Green made the statement during a brief stopover at Windsor airport on his way to Vancouver and his home riding of Vancouver-Quadra.

AGAINST TESTS

Asked for his opinion regarding President Eisenhower's announcement Tuesday that the U.S. will not extend its moratorium on nuclear tests, Mr. Green replied, "We are against nuclear tests of any kind, and our position has been made clear on this point."

SERIOUS MISTAKES

In Regina CCF House leader Hazen Argue said:

"The CCF party believes any decision by the United States to resume nuclear tests is a serious mistake."

"Far from strengthening the Western position at the summit conference it has weakened it."

CHICAGO (UPI)—Two noted scientists called yesterday for all-out use of every practical method of birth control to save the world from political and social catastrophe.

The demand was contained in a statement issued by Dr. Philip M. Hauser, University of Chicago sociologist. British biologist Sir Julian Huxley forwarded "general" agreement with the statement from England and added to it.

INCONSISTENT

Hauser said United States refusal to back birth control would be inconsistent with this nation's participation in the United Nations health program and American medical efforts towards "death control."

Hauser and Huxley also attacked Pope John's Dec. 14 pronouncement against birth control and President Eisenhower's opposition to offering birth control information to other nations.

INSUFFICIENT

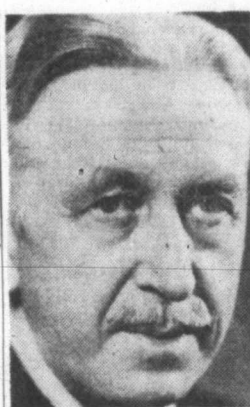

While birth control methods acceptable to the Catholic church "can and do" control population to a limited extent, Hauser said, they will not suffice in the face of the world's current population "explosion."

A basic problem for immediate generations is not space and feeding, Hauser said, so much as raising living standards in under-developed countries in order to meet the threat of Communism.

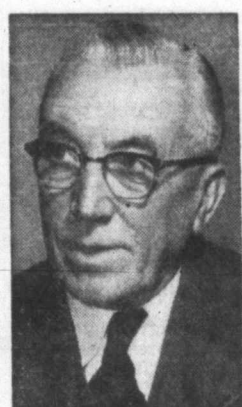

ERRONEOUS

"To the extent that the population facts are ignored, the Roman Catholic church is assuming a position in respect to demography (population statistics study) now like the admittedly erroneous positions it originally took (toward) Copernican cosmology and Darwinian evolution," Hauser said.

Hauser said Pope John had attacked labels of "pernicious and death dealing" to birth control methods "completely compatible with moral values of other Christian as well as non-Christian value systems."

Refugee Flow 'Mere Token'

OTTAWA (CP) — The CCF party Wednesday called on the federal government to admit 2,500 tubercular European refugees and their families in the next six months.

National leader M. J. Coldwell said that the current admission of 100 patients and their families from Europe is "no more than a token, a gesture."

He said the number of beds available in Canadian sanatoria now is around 2,700.

"For us to leave these beds empty any longer while thousands of European refugees continue their dismal wait in camps set up 15 years ago is a sin against humanity," Mr. Coldwell said in a statement in connection with the current World Refugee Year.

For the proposed 2,500, he said it would be the federal government's responsibility to make all the necessary arrangements with the provinces, including the payment of all costs.

"The government," he added, "must also give its utmost moral and financial support to those agencies of the United Nations trying to solve the still more difficult problem of the refugees of, for example, the Middle East and Hong Kong."

Vanier:

'Open Your Arms'

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. George Vanier, in his first New Year's message as governor-general, yesterday made a special plea to Canadians to welcome with open arms persons who come from foreign lands to seek a new life in Canada.

Through a warm welcome for newcomers, Canadians would strengthen the bonds of unity under the crown and continue the apostleship of the Queen who had endeared herself to many new Canadians during her visit last summer.

No Axe To Grind

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The world's best technical experts will be brought in to study the feasibility report on the engineering and economics of hydro development in the Peace River, B.C. water controller Arthur F. Paget said last night.

"They will be people who have no axe to grind in British Columbia and their professional reputations will be staked on their decisions," Mr. Paget said.

FOUR COPIES

Peace River Power Development Company president W. C. Mainwaring delivered to Mr. Paget yesterday four copies of the nine-volume report prepared by his company after $5,000,000 worth of studies in the Rocky Mountain Trench area.

REPORT SECRET

Mr. Mainwaring said the report is secret and all other copies have been locked away in a vault until the water controller has completed his study and made his recommendations.

$611,000,000

The report details plans for a $611,000,000 development to produce 4,000,000 horsepower on the Peace River.

Mr. Paget says it deals only with hydro development and has nothing to do with a proposed railway or a uranium enrichment plant. "Those do not come under my department," he said.

MARCH DEADLINE

Mr. Paget has until March 31 to make a report on the development plan.

"I am going into deep thought for about three months," he said. He added his own department experts and others who will be brought in will study the plan. One world-renowned consultant, D. J. Bliffuss, is already working on the Peace studies with the water rights branch.

SOUND REPORT

"We are going to produce a basically very sound report," Mr. Paget said.

"There will be no public hearings during these studies," Mr. Paget declared.

Mr. Paget said he will make a report to the government. "That report might be construed as approval or disapproval," he said.

PUC NEXT

After Mr. Paget makes his report . . . and if it is favorable to the Peace development . . . the Peace River Power Development Company will have to apply to the Public Utilities Commission for a certificate of convenience and necessity.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

That is when public hearings on the plan will be held.

"A decision on a water rights licence must wait until the PUC gives its approval to the scheme," Mr. Paget said, "and it would be contingent upon the company receiving PUC approval."

City Police Court Collects $151,000 in Fines in '59

Dog's Heart Transplanted

STANFORD, Calif. (AP)—Dr. Norman Shumway and Dr. Richard Lower have successfully transplanted a living heart from one dog to another.

The mongrel male dog was still alive a week after the operation.

Business continued to expand in Victoria's police court during 1959, as more than 8,000 "customers" paid in more than $151,000—more than $5,000 above the total for 1958.

The total includes fines paid into court by all types of offenders during the year, those prepaid in the traffic office as well as those paid in court.

Actually, just over 8,000 individuals paid their fines in the court as a result of summons.

DAY IN, DAY OUT

Those who paid their fines in the traffic office (and the vast majority were parking violations) averaged about 190 individuals a day, six days a week, all year.

Only one month in 1959 showed fines totalling less than $10,000. "Returns" for August were only $9,821.

For other months, receipts were: January, $13,185; February, $12,287; March, $12,314; April, $13,394; May, $13,163; June, $13,972; July, $11,080; September, $13,467; October, $11,953; November, $13,470.

December receipts including Dec. 30 were $13,378—and another $300 to $400 would probably be added for the last day of the year.

Total number of courtroom contributors in 1958 was 7,601, and the receipts for that year were $145,816.

All money from fines goes into the city's general revenue. It is not earmarked for the police court or the department.

Just Eight Deaths Away From All-Time Record

British Columbia last night stood only eight deaths away from equalling the all-time traffic fatality record of 316, set in 1956.

With 308 traffic deaths recorded up until yesterday, motor vehicles branch officials appealed to motorists to drive carefully and sensibly over the New Year's holiday.

Besides the fatalities there have been more than 7,000 persons injured this year, some of them maimed for life.
